Blowey-Henry Site Is Sought For Park Area

City commissioners were instructed by city council Monday night to enter into negotiations with W. T. Henry with a view to acquiring the Blowey-Henry warehouse site for conversion into a park area.

Pending the outcome of these negotiations action was deferred in the granting of a permit to rebuild the premises recently damaged by fire.

City Commissioner R. J. Gibb told aldermen that the Blowey-Henry company had a considerable investment in the building and site and that it would be unfair to take that investment away from the company through non-issuance of a building permit. He informed council that the company was willing to meet all requirements as to the type of structure to be erected.

WANTED FOR PARK

Several aldermen were of the opinion that the city should endeavor to acquire the property for park purposes as part of the plan to beautify the district surrounding the Macdonald hotel.

The company desires to erect a one-storey structure on the concrete basement, and is prepared to build in brick, but the city architect Max-

Canadian Frigate Destroys U-Boat

OTTAWA, June 13 — (CP) — Fourth U-boat victim of the Canadian navy in 10 weeks was announced today by Navy Minister Macdonald when he disclosed a recent action in mid-Atlantic in which new frigate Prince Rupert nabbed an undersea raider and brought back 14 prisoners.

First spotted and damaged by a Wellington bomber, the latest Nazi victim was finished off by a barrage from Prince Rupert's guns after it had been blasted to the surface by depth charges. Two United States ships, a destroyer and a corvette escort and a Grumman Avenger plane from an American aircraft carrier shared in the kill.

CPO. Don McCulloch, 11238 93rd street, Edmonton, acted as officer-of-the-quarters on one of the frigate's four-inch guns which poured shells into the sub. "I'm mighty proud of my gun crews. It sounded like hell let loose when our Oerlikon and four-inchers started slamming shells into the pig-boat," he said.

Other Alberta sailors in the action included AB. Eric Grommers, Edmonton; ERA. David M. Wallace, Calgary.

Success Exceeds Eisenhower's Hopes

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 13—(AP)—Gen. Eisenhower said tonight the "accomplishments in the first seven days of the campaign have exceeded my highest hopes."

Sweden to Reduce German Shipments Of Ball Bearings

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—Sweden has agreed to make a very substantial reduction in shipments to Germany of ball-bearings vital to the Nazi war effort, it was learned today.

It is a compromise between the British, American and Russian demands that Sweden eliminate all ball-bearing shipments to Germany and the argument of the Stockholm government that it could not make any reductions.

Bank Committee

Little Progress Made as Hidden Reserves Argued

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, June 13—Two days of sometimes Liberal M.P.'s continued their campaign in the banking and commerce committee today to obtain disclosure of inner reserves of the chartered banks, as committee proceedings went into the 16th day with sharp words and repetitive oratory but little progress. Two members plainly waging a filibuster in the committee are G. G. McGeer, K.C. (Liberal, Vancouver-Burrard) and A. G. Slaght, K.C., (Liberal, Parry Sound.)

Mr. McGeer was in midst of a lengthy analysis of the banking system when the sitting ended. "I would like to remind members," said chairman W. H. Moore, drily, "that this is the end of our 16th session." Most of the morning was taken up by Mr. Slaght. At one stage Mr. Moore said: "We seem to be going around in circles."

SHARP REBUKE

Finance Minister Ilsley rebuked Mr. Slaght sharply for repeating that the banks escaped taxation by setting aside inner reserves. "Don't keep saying that," he said. "It is most misleading and most unfair."

If the Slaght motion carries,

All Vehicles Used by Allies Carrying Star

NEW YORK, June 13.—(BUP)—In a broadcast from London today, Charles Shaw, CBS correspondent, said confusion has developed over the Allied decision to paint the five-point white star on all Allied tanks and vehicles sent to Normandy.

"Since the star has been used only on American vehicles," he said, "many who have seen photographs or newsreels of the battle scene have concluded that the equipment bearing the star is American.

"It is pointed out this morning," Shaw said, "that the symbol is the 'Star of Liberation' and that all vehicles except ambulances and Royal Air Force vehicles, whether they be American, British or Canadian, share this common symbol in order to facilitate recognition and increase efficiency."

Women, Students Sole Labor Source

TORONTO, June 13. — (CP) — More strenuous measures regarding the employment of school students and married women are the only main avenues remaining to increase Canada's working population, Arthur MacNamara, director of national selective service, said today.

Mr. MacNamara warned the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that Canada is headed into the most acute labor shortage the country has ever faced—a shortage that will probably reach a peak in October.

Mr. MacNamara appealed to employers to meet their labor problems, as far as possible in their own plants.

At June 2 there was need of 134,117 men to fill job vacancies, other than logging and farming, and the figure—double that of February—was mounting rapidly, he reported. In addition there were 67,323 vacancies for women. Beyond this need was the requirement of the armed forces for 98,000 men in 1944.

C.C.F. Candidate Is Withdrawing

C.C.F. Nominee Admits Recall Papers Signed

REGINA, June 13.—(CP)—The Regina Leader-Post yesterday quoted Frank K. Malcolm as saying that when he was nominated C.C.F. candidate for Milestone constituency in the provincial general election he signed an "unconditional resignation" to be held by the C.C.F. executive and accepted by them if at any time "I am not acting in their best interests—that is, in the interest of the constituency."

"Mr. Malcolm said he had always believed in the principle of recall," the newspaper said. It added that it was learned yesterday that the C.C.F. provincial constitution contains provision for recall of sitting C.C.F. members of the legislature."

"DEFINITE VIOLATION"

The Leader-Post said that constitutional authorities in Regina contended that the reported recall procedure of the C.C.F. was "a definite violation of one of the basic principles of responsible government. Once a member is elected, he becomes the representative of all the people of his constituency and the province, not merely of the party he represents."

Navy Losses Few During Invasion

OTTAWA, June 13.—(BUP)—No large Canadian warships and only a "negligible" number of Royal Canadian Navy personnel have been lost so far in the invasion of Northern France, Navy Minister Angus L. MacDonald told the House of Commons today.

The minister revealed that losses in ships have been confined to a few landing craft. He said that men and ships of the navy continue to "fare well" in the invasion, and that Canada is represented in the operations by more than 100 vessels and almost 10,000 naval officers and men.

HITLER MADE POOR GUESS ON INVASION

NEW YORK, June 13.—(CP)—As Allied troops rounded out their first week of invasion fighting in western Europe, the office of war information recalled a prediction by Hitler the Allies in carrying out such an attack, would be "lucky" to "remain ashore for nine hours." Hitler made the statement in a speech delivered at the Sportspalast in Berlin Sept. 30, 1942, a little more than five weeks after the Dieppe raid.

Plan Outlined To Cut Travel

TORONTO, June 13. — (CP) — A four-point program designed to cut down unnecessary passenger travel was outlined today by C. Lockwood of Montreal, transport controller, in an address to the 73rd annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Lockwood suggested: greater use of mail, telegraph and telephone rather than the sending of a representative to transact business;

When it is found necessary to send a personal representative, that one, rather than two or three, or the fewest possible number, be sent; and

That any travel which leads to or augments heavy concentraitons of travel, such as week-ends and holidays, be scrupulously avoided.

Advance in Teeth of Savage Enemy Counter-Attacks to Capture Troarn

LONDON, June 13.—British and Canadian troops, fighting forward in the teeth of savage German counter-attacks, captured Troarn, 5½ miles east of Caen in a full-scale drive to envelop the western anchor of the enemy defences, and American patrols, driving half way across the neck of the Normandy peninsula were reported probing the approaches of Cherbourg.

The British threw a ring of armor around Caen and were battling heavily against the German garrison which holds the most stubborn strongpoint encountered so far in the invasion.

The fighting reached new peaks of violence at both ends of the 30-mile front as the Nazis hit back hard to check the American gains. A dispatch from the front timed 1:10 p.m. today said Germans had rallied around Carentan and Montebourg and that street fighting again was underway in both towns.

Allied headquarters, however, officially confirmed the capture of Montebourg, and also L'Abbe, as reported earlier by British United Press correspondent Henry T. Gorrell, and uncertainty thus prevailed as to the exact situation in Montebourg and also at Carentan.

Later it was said at supreme Allied headquarters that despite the progress of German counterattacks at Montebourg and Carentan the general situation on the Cherbourg peninsula was "very gratifying."

DRIVE ON ST. LO

To the southeast the Americans were making "very satisfactory" progress in a drive to flank St. Lo, ancient citadel half way across the peninsula, and were reported to be within less than six miles of the communications hub.

Violent tank battles continued in the area of Caen and Tilly-Sur-Seulles, south of Bayeaux. The British armor was pouring round after round into three German panzer divisions concentrated in that sector.

The British burst suddenly out of a pocket over the Orne canal between Caen and the sea to take Troarn—a five mile advance which seriously threatened the German position inside battered Caen.

Simultaneously other British and Canadian troops stormed south,

Torture - Robbers Sought in Ontario

FORT FRANCES, Ont., June 13.—(CP)—Police today sought three men for the torture-robbery of Mrs. Viola Jamieson of Flanders, Ont., who was wrapped in a sheet and placed atop a hot stove when she refused to disclose the hiding place of her money.

After administering torture, the men, police were told, locked Mrs. Jamieson and her two young sons in a cold house from where one of the boys escaped and notified townspeople.

The men entered her home early Saturday night, threw a sheet over her head and demanded money. They also ransacked newspapers after holding the flaming papers against her hands and arm. When she persisted in her refusal to divulge the hiding place of the money, she was set on top of the stove, police were told.

NAPLES, June 13—Fresh German divisions rushed down from the north and rag-tag remnants of the broken Nazi 14th army have turned on the pursuing Allied 5th army in the hills 50 to 70 miles above Rome and the advanced columns are meeting stiffer resistance all along the battle line, a communique disclosed today.

British Eighth army columns also were encountering stiff resistance at the eastern flank of the German line, pushing slowly up the north side of the Tiber river to within a dozen miles of Terni, 50 miles above Rome.

British spearheads drove the Nazis from Popoli, an important junction point on the Rome-Pescara highway, 25 miles inland from the Adriatic coast, while other columns advanced north and west from captured Avezzano. The two forces were only about 20 miles apart at

Stalin Expresses Emphatic Approval Of Allied Invasion

LONDON, June 13.—(CP)—The German DNB agency late today asserted a narrow wedge has been driven into the German line east of the river Orne, where British and Canadian air-borne troops are fighting.

LONDON, June 13.—(AP)—A Berlin radio announcement today said German General of Artillery Marcks, "commander of the Cherbourg peninsula, met death in fierce fighting at the head of his troops."

LONDON, June 13.—(CP)—Leslie Randall, in a dispatch from 21st Army Group headquarters published in the Evening Standard today, said "it is now believed that Rommel is dead. No definite news of him has reached this headquarters since the invasion began, but all pointers are that he is not in command."

DOVER, England, June 13.—(CP)—The skies over the channel were overcast today and a heavy shower fell during the morning, but there was little wind and the sea remained calm, with excellent visibility from coast to coast.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—The BBC today quoted a correspondent at supreme headquarters of the Allied expeditionary forces as saying it was believed American patrols had pushed within 11 miles of Cherbourg.

STOCKHOLM, June 13.—(BUP)—The Stockholm Morgontidningen said today that the Germans are preparing for war on their own soil and that instructions are being issued to the population on how to combat air-borne Allied troops.

London Undergoes Two Air Attacks

LONDON, June 13.—(CP)—London had two alerts early today, the first in nearly seven weeks.

Hardly had the all-clear sounded after the first alarm, which brought only a brief burst of fire from the big anti-aircraft guns, than the second alert sounded.

This time a heavier barrage went up. The German raiders approached nearer downtown. The two alerts covered less than an hour.

It was the first time Londoners had heard the sirens since April 27.

At least one bomb was dropped in a suburb.

It subsequently was announced one German plane was shot down in the attack on London.

Planes Blast French Areas, Bomb Munich

LONDON, June 13—Allied aircraft attacked three enemy airfields and German communication lines to the Normandy coast in France today as strong forces of heavy bombers based in Italy pounded airdromes and industrial plants in the Munich area.

Simultaneously, Allied reconnaissance revealed that the Luftwaffe has dispatched more than 500 single-engined fighters into forward airdromes within tactical range of the battlefields in the past few days.

Another 500 enemy bombers were reported to have been moved into bases further to the east and headquarters observers admitted that with this striking force the Germans may be able to gain temporary control over local areas of the battle-front or to mount a co-ordinated land and air counter-attack against the Allied beachhead.

MUNICH ATTACK

The Italy-based heavy bombers, escorted by strong formations of fighter planes, attacked airdromes, aircraft engine plants and motor works in the Munich section. Chief target was the Oberpfaffenhoten airdrome, 15 miles southwest of Munich, which also is used for the

General Says "Battle of Beaches Won"

Montgomery Lauds Western Canada Troops For "Feat Not Equalled" On British Front

By WILLIAM STEWART

WITH THE ALLIED TROOPS IN FRANCE, June 11.—(Delayed)—(CP)—Gen. Montgomery, reporting on the Normandy campaign, Sunday night paid high compliment to the work of a Canadian infantry brigade which has been in the thick of the fighting since D-Day.

The Allied invasion commander, in a chat with British, Canadian and United States correspondents, during which he reported 7,000 prisoners had been captured, including some Japanese, described the work of a western Canadian brigade which is part of the Canadian 3rd Division as "excellent."

"The brigade landed on the beaches and went right away to its objective inland and still stands there," the General said. "It was very good. It was excellent."

FEAT NOT EQUALLED

Montgomery added the western troops' feat had not been equalled on the "British front," explaining by that term he means British and Empire invasion troops.

Gen. Montgomery said "We have won what I would call the battle of the beaches" and declared "a great many of the enemy have been killed."

The Allied commander said the Japanese—regular soldiers, not merely observers—were fighting alongside their Axis partners and small numbers of them already then east from a point somewhere between Caen and the Cerisy forest in an effort to get behind the city from the south.

5 LANDING STRIPS

The Allies now are using five landing strips in France. Unloading conditions improved for a time at all beaches as the wind moderated better, but this morning conditions became spotty with clouds closing in on some parts of the continent.

Some limited airborne operations were carried out Monday night, employing the landing strips in France.

It was officially revealed that the British Third and 50th Infantry Divisions, the Sixth Airborne Division and the Canadian Third Division were in action on the beachhead, a total of four so far announced. The American divisions disclosed to be engaged are the First, Second and Fourth and 29th Infantry Divisions and the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions.

More than 10,000 German prisoners have been counted, it was announced officially.

NAZIS PLAN ATTACK

Air power, the Allies' biggest ace at the present stage of the invasion, was coming into fuller play. The weather reduced the air assault somewhat around noon, but fighter-bombers continued hammering the German front and rear after American heavy bombers hit three air fields in France.

While the British and Canadians pushed ahead along the vital Bayeux-Caen front and to the east of the beleaguered enemy stronghold, the Germans were reported massing troops and armor for an all out attempt to split the Allied bridgehead.

American troops drove half way across the narrow neck of the Normandy peninsula and captured Pont L'Abbe, only eight miles from the enemy's west coast railway, in a drive to isolate Cherbourg.

Montebourg, by-passed enemy stronghold 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg, and three villages to the northeast fell to another column pushing up the main Paris-Cherbourg highway, Henry T. Gorrell, British United Press correspondent, reported from the front.

While the main forces were advancing less than 12 miles southeast of Cherbourg, American patrols probed the approaches to the port, Allied headquarters revealed.

Further to the southeast other forces pushed to within six miles of the 11th century citadel of St. Lo, communications centre of the peninsula and between St. Lo and the Atlantic and the 80-mile-long Allied beachhead, beyond Caen, British and Canadian tanks and infantry also gained ground against the stiffest German resistance and repeated counter-attacks.

But Caen itself and Tilly-Sur-Seulles, south of Bayeux, remained in German hands in fierce see-saw fighting.

14 TO 15 DIVISIONS

The Germans were estimated to have thrown 14 to 15 divisions—one quarter of all their garrison in western Europe into the all-out attempt to drive the Allies back into the sea.

Official estimates that the Germans have drawn off one quarter of their entire strength in Europe to combat the invasion followed disclosure that 14 to 15 enemy divisions—250,000 troops—already were known to have been brought up to the front. Two of the divisions, the 716th and 352nd infantry, have been mauled so severely, however, that they no longer can be considered fighting units.

Latest estimate of Allied strength in the beachhead came from the Paris radio, which said the arrival of additional British and American troops in "great strength" last night boosted the number of divisions to 30—450,000 men at full strength.

DECISIVE BATTLE

The Vichy radio reported a new landing attempt at S. Vaast-La Hogue, near the northeastern tip of the Normandy peninsula 14 miles east of Cherbourg.

In view of the huge forces committed by both sides on the peninsula, Jean Jaures, Paris radio commentator, said the battle of Normandy was capable of deciding "the future course of the war."

By FRED SCHERF

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright 1944, by British United Press

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Authoritative British and American military sources here agreed today that the success of the entire invasion of the Normandy peninsula was centred in the Bayeux-Caen area, held by British and Canadian troops, and warned that the operations were entering their most crucial stage with signs that the first major German counter-attack will come there within 48 hours.

(In London it was estimated officially that the Germans had massed a quarter of all their armies in western Europe for an attempt to smash the Allied bridgehead.)

Expert analysis said it was quite apparent that the Bayeux-Caen sector provided the arm which protected American troops in their thrusts westward which captured Carentan, menaced St. Lo and pointed towards Cherbourg.

PERMITS DRIVE

Ability of the British and Canadians to hold their ground while the Germans threw every piece of armor available against them permitted the Americans to drive westward with the assurance their flank was safe, the commentator said.

On their side, they added, the Germans realized the importance of the Bayeux-Caen sector and knew in all they had because they did not dare wait until other armored units could be moved up to reinforce them. At the same time bad weather conditions slowed the arrival of reinforcements which made the British and Canadian task all the more strenuous.

In holding their Bayeux-Caen positions and improving them in the face of the Germans efforts to dislodge them, the British and Canadians rendered the enemy situation in the narrow Cherbourg peninsula increasingly precarious, since in addition to ground and air pressure, naval guns could straddle the thin neck of land from both coasts.

Unable to reinforce the peninsula effectively because of the British menace to the flank of any enemy troop and supply columns, the Germans apparently had to meet the American thrusts without prospect of any material help, a picture which reveals the careful and skilful planning of the Allied strategy aimed at reducing the peninsula and capturing the first-class port of Cherbourg.

WILL HOLD FRONT

As the expected big German counter-attack against the Bueyx-Caen sector developed, military authorities here expressed confidence that with the arrival of reinforcements now continuing a stream of men and supplies, the British forces would be able to maintain their ground.

President Roosevelt in a radio address last night said that the Allies were ready "with power and confidence" to meet the inevitable counter-attacks.

The Allied grip on the base of the Normandy peninsula will take on new significance after Cherbourg falls. The great docking facilities there will enable the unloading of great new quantities of heavy equipment by which the Allies break through the more advanced positions on the peninsula.

The improved weather over the English Channel will be a further aid to the Allies in expelling the expected German attack. Swarms of fighters and fighter-bombers will cover ground forces, ready to meet any challenge from the still relatively dormant Luftwaffe and to attack German armor and transport on the ground.

NAZIS MAY LACK GAS

There was some belief here that a shortage of high-test aviation fuel may be at least part of the answer for the Luftwaffe's failure so far to pear in any great strength over the Normandy peninsula thus far. This view was strengthened by the fact that the Nazis sent up more than 100 planes to oppose the Allied bombers that struck at the Ploesti oil refineries in Rumania last week.

Visitor Says Palestine Now Beacon of Hope

Palestine is the beacon of hope for the millions of Jews whose homes have been uprooted in the shattered countries of Nazi dominated Europe, S. C. Schwisberg, Montreal lawyer, stated on his arrival here to open a series of meetings in the city in connection with the Zionist movement, and declared that the terms of the 1939 White Paper which reduces Jewry in Palestine to a permanent minority.

That action by the British government, he said, represented a betrayal of the pledge involved in the Balfour declaration, which established the Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine. This pledge was reaffirmed when made available to the League of Nations, he said.

RECLAIMED LANDS

He said that since the Balfour declaration Jews in Palestine had reclaimed marsh lands and deserts and had established agriculture on a firm basis as well as creating a flourishing economy within the country.

Marching abreast of the industrial and agricultural development of the country, he added, was the educational, spiritual and social. Health services made available in Palestine by Jewry had resulted in bringing about a decline of 75 per cent in the child death rate amongst Arabs.

GREAT ASSISTANCE

He said that the Jews of Palestine had provided invaluable assistance to the Allied nations while the Arabs had remained neutral or had actively assisted the enemy. Steady streams of agricultural supplies, precision instruments and endless supplies of munitions poured from Palestine into North Africa, he said, and in addition 30,000 of the 850,000 Jews in Palestine fought with Montgomery's Eighth Army in the North African campaign.

have been taken prisoner and others killed.

Gen. Montgomery said "the beach where the landing of the Americans took place east of the Carentan estuary was found being defended by a German division which was not an essential division. It was a very good division and fought very well. German prisoners said the division had just been brought up from behind to thicken the crust of the coastal defences and it actually was in the process of carrying out exercises when the American attacked.

VERY HEAVY FIGHTING

"There was very heavy fighting on that American beach all D-day, swaying back and forth, and by the end of the day the Americans were not more than 100 yards inland and were hanging on by their eyelids.

. . . There is no doubt about it that the American troops did absolutely magnificently in recovering from that very unpleasant situation, and today these same troops are miles inland—very good, very good indeed."

Gen. Montgomery said the situation was retrieved by three things: "First, by the gallantry of the private soldier who is a very brave man.

"Second, by the grand supporting fire given from the sea and by the Allied navy.

"And third, by the support given from the air by the fighter-bombers who knew the situation and came down low to shoot up Germans at close range.

"VERY FINE, WONDERFUL"

"The retrieving of that situation is probably one of the finest things done in this operation—very fine, very fine indeed. Wonderful!"

Wearing a grey turtle-neck sweater, fawn-colored cordurov trousers and his famous black tank corps beret, the Allied ground force chief spoke to a group of some 40 frontline correspondents for more than an hour while Allied warplanes roared overhead and the guns of battle thundered across the Normandy hills in the distance.

"The beaches are now behind us," he said. "The violence, power and speed of our initial assault carried us over the beaches and inland very quickly.

"That was my initial instruction to the senior officers. I said that every man must be imbued with an idea—to penetrate quickly and deeply into enemy country and peg out claims inland. And that was done.

MUST ADVANCE QUICKLY

"The conception that you land on the beaches and get a little bridgehead and there dig in—that is no good. You must penetrate quickly and deeply.

"We have suffered losses because the Germans in pillboxes remained behind our lines. Also there were a considerable number of German snipers. All that had to be cleaned up.

"There is still one pocket of Germans holding out, but I think they are leaving at the moment."

Montgomery said the snipers included women — who had been killed in the act of shooting at Allied troops.

"Perhaps they are German women who have been brought over here," he said.

The wiry, twinkling-eyed commander said he was "very pleased and quite happy with the progress so far."

"Our soldiers, American and British, are tremendous form," he declared. "Their skills are very high up in the air. They are full of beans. And they have already got the measure of the enemy."

Montgomery said he had called the press conference after reading that not enough information news was getting home directly from the fighting front.

TO MAKE INQUIRIES

He promised to investigate the situation and ponder and, to give his personal attention to the problem of providing the Allied soldiers in the battle line with news of the great invasion.

Montgomery also commended had mentioned that the soldier in the front line was not getting as much war news as the civilian in Britain and North America.

Veteran correspondents said they never had known Montgomery to be so cheerful and confident, yet realistic. Montgomery would not talk about casualties or future operations. He said "it is very dangerous to say anything about the enemy." Of the Germans' Atlantic Wall, he said: "They did not build a Chinese wall where I landed. I have not seen any Atlantic Wall."

The width of the lodgement area is over 60 miles from east of the River One to the American troops who are only 18 miles from Cherbourg. The depth varies. In some cases it is 18 miles; in other places not so much," he continued.

"It is a good firm lodgment area and we can use as a firm base for developing operations."

Saboteurs Active

MADRID, June 13.—(CP)—Every French train reaching the border brings reports of French rail lines being knocked out by saboteurs, and bridges dynamited. About 14 miles south of Pairs, saboteurs on Sunday night destroyed most of the huge Jurisy metallurgical works. The Germans arrested 300 persons.

Stowaway Helped Hold Town

AT AN EMBARKATION POINT IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, June 13.—(AP)—Benjamin Gwartney, a glider mechanic from Oklahoma City, Okla., flew to France as an invasion stowaway and now is back here with a broken rib after some rough fighting.

Gwartney stowed away in the rear of a glider.

The glider landed under German fire. Its undercarriage was smashed and its contents of one anti-tank gun and quota of soldiers were dumped into a ditch.

Gwartney, despite a broken rib suffered in the landing, helped 34 other volunteers hold a captured town.

Gwartney had this explanation for his exploit:

"If my brother (Pte. James C. Gwartney) ever comes back he'll say 'where were you in the invasion' and I couldn't tell him I was a ground mechanic."

The brother was captured by the Japanese at Corregidor.

Canadians Hold Nazi Attack, Now Battling Back to Caen

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

IN THE BATTLE LINE WITH THE BRITISH FORCES, France, June 12.—(Delayed)—Shattered tanks—German Mark IV's and Allied Shermans—dot the wheat fields stretching off toward Caen, marking the high water mark of the Germans' latest attempt to dislodge the Canadians from this sector. We've held the thrust and now we're hammering back along the road to Caen, village by village.

My vantage point is a British gun in a thicket. For the moment it is silent and I am able to climb on top of it for a better view of the battle of Caen up ahead, which has been going on steadily for days now.

Massed machine guns are laying down a terrific barrage on a heavily-wooded slope in which the Germans are lurking in strength. The medium Vickers guns pour volley after volley from a poppy-smothered field.

McMillan

The air is filled with a deafening clatter as their leaden hail rips the foliage of the woods.

"This is our second shoot this morning," the major commanding the machine-gunners says. "As soon as we've cleared this wood we are going to move on toward Caen and shoot up another target—a village in which the Germans have barricaded themselves."

PULVERIZING FIRE

I can see the rooftops of the village across the trees. Already it's sprouting clouds of dust and smoke as heavy and medium cannon lay down pulverizing fire.

A colonel from Saskatchewan, tells me those derelict tanks got left in the wheat field.

"Rommel sent in tanks and panzer grenadiers trying to dislodge us from this part of the road, which dominates the approach to Caen," the colonel said. "As you can see by looking over the fields, we lost a number of tanks but we held and I think the enemy realizes it's suicidal to try to dislodge us."

Blowey-Henry Site Is Sought For Park Area

well C. Dewar is of the opinion that permission should be granted to erect a frame and stucco one-storey structure instead.

Ald. Sidney Parsons said that to grant permission to erect a one-storey structure would not conform with the eventual plan for this property, and would mean the delay of the park plan for several years. He suggested that negotiations be undertaken to acquire the property if a reasonable price is placed on it by the owner.

Commissioner John Hodgson told council members that the question of beautification of the approaches of the Macdonald hotel and surroundings would be discussed with R. C. Vaughan, president of the Canadian National Railways, by Mayor Fry on his present trip east.

DELA.' BEAUTIFICATION

Ald. M. M. Downey said that representations had been made by practically every organization in Edmonton to proceed with the beautification of the Macdonald hotel approaches and surroundings. If this building is erected the beautification plan will be delayed. He moved that the commissioners enter into negotiations to acquire the property.

Little Progress Made as Hidden Reserves Argued

which committee observers now regard as unlikely, the banks would be compelled to disclose their inner reserves and where they obtained the funds from. Almost all the last 12 sittings of the committee have been devoted to discussing bank reserves.

When Mr. Slaght declaimed that anyone voting against his motion would be going back on the original democratic principle of trusting the people and making parliament supreme, he elicited a chorus of loud protests from committee members. "That's all," said several members.

Only one reference seemed to hint at the reported battle over banking committee procedure that Liberal members waged in their caucus last week. At that time, so lobby reports have said, the charge was laid against Mr. McGeer and Mr. Slaght that they were obstructing the committee. This was reported to be denied vigorously. Today, Mr. Slaght remarked "We ought to be free from the whip from the party in this committee." He said, in his demand for disclosure of inner reserves, he was going back to old-time Liberal principles.

One man who refused to disclose what he did with public money was Charles I and his head rolled into the basket said Mr. Slaght. Mr. Ilsley continued by saying Charles I levied taxes illegally, and nothing of the kind was involved in bank control. He was also rebuked Mr. Slaght for "giving the impression banks were doing an unlawful thing in setting aside contingency reserves. That is entirely wrong."

QUEER IDEAS

Hugh Maybank (Lib., South Centre Winnipeg), said he was not in favor of the Slaght motion and it would be a pleasure to record his vote against it as soon as possible. Some people have queer ideas of pleasure, Mr. Slaght replied. Mr. Maybank and Mr. Slaght seemed to take a sadistic pleasure in the committee.

Mr. Ilsley said there was no secret the banks kept inner reserves, that it was merely a bad debts reserve found necessary in banking practice. Mr. McGeer opened a new task when he began to argue that strength of the banking system did not reside in its reserves, but in the value of the securities held by the banks. They held $3 billion in cash and government securities, he said.

Allies in Italy Meet Stiffer Hun Resistance

Avezzano and Popoli and the Germans were reported pulling out hurriedly from the pocket separating them.

FIGHT SAVAGELY

Taking advantage of the first high ground north of Rome, the Nazis were reported fighting back savagely as four new divisions, one extending 80 miles inland from Tyrrhenian seacoast at Orbetello.

Official reports indicated, however that the enemy forces still were in headlong retreat toward their secondary defence line between Rome and Pisa, more than 100 miles further north and that the overwhelming power of Allied armor and infantry rolling up from Rome would prevent any serious stand on the present line.

American infantry columns ran into stiff opposition along the coastal road southeast of Orbetello where the German rearguards took up positions in the hills astride a laternal highway running inland from Orbetello.

CONVERGE ON ORVIETO

Fierce fighting also developed on both sides of Lake Bolsena, where British and American columns were converging on the key railway town of Orvieto. American units on the west shore captured Valentano, a five-way highway junction, and moved on four miles to Latera. At the same time, South African troops in the centre drove around the east side of the lake to within about six miles of Orvieto, meeting little opposition in the Bagnoregio sector.

The new units thrown into the enemy battle line were believed to be a third-rate division hastily pressed into action for a delaying stand, including a division of captured Russians. Allied army headquarters spokesmen expressed doubt that they would be able to do more than slow the Allied advance momentarily.

Meanwhile, the Nazi 10th Army continued to hurried but still orderly retreat all the way from the Adriatic coast to the central Appennines under relentless pressure from the attacking British 8th Army.

Approve Purchase Of 8 New Buses

Purchase of eight trolley buses for use on the Highlands route was authorized by city council Monday night. Cost of the buses is estimated at $178,000. Their purchase was recommended by council's transportation committee.

City Commissioner R. J. Gibb informed council that the Public Utilities Board had intimated acceptance of the order if it was placed, and also that permission had been obtained from the Dominion transit controller for the purchase of the vehicles.

He said that the buses would be delivered in 1945 at which time the conversion of the Highlands route from street car to trolley bus operation would be carried out. The cost of this transfer, he said, would be approximately $284,000.

When completed the conversion would release five street cars for operation on other routes, he added, in obtaining the consent of the transit controller to the purchase of the trolley buses.

German Role In Invasion Past Exaggeration

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

FIRST CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Somewhere in Britain, June 13—(CP)—Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, commander of the 1st Canadian Army, told correspondents today "it will be difficult if not impossible to exaggerate" the contribution of the Canadian contribution to the "vast and decisive" assault on France.

The genial commander made the statement at the conclusion of a comprehensive off-the-record conference with Allied war correspondents and gave permission for this portion of his remarks to be reported.

"I do not need to emphasize the eagerness with which I and all ranks of the Canadian army, wherever located, have been following the fortunes of all the forces engaged in the assault landing and the pride which we share in the magnificent part played by Canadians.

"We knew beforehand had well these especially-trained Canadian troops would carry out a difficult and vitally-important task.

"The enemy certainly shares that knowledge now.

"I believe that when the time comes that the complete story of the preparations and plan for this vast and decisive Allied assault landing can be revealed the importance of the Canadian contribution to its success will be fully realized.

"It will be difficult if not impossible to exaggerate it.

"During the last year in Sicily and Italy and now in France, Canadian troops have shown their great and inherited qualities. You can count on it they will continue to do so until the end and will spare themselves nothing to ensure that final victory suffers no delay."

Planes Blast French Areas, Bomb Munich

assembly of ME-14 twin-engined fighters.

Meanwhile, the attack by flying fortresses on three enemy airfields in France was carried out in a fighter bomber's version of clearing weather to roar back over the Channel in the mounting Allied aerial assault against German communications with the Normandy peninsula.

By late afternoon the Allies since midnight had flown nearly 4,000 sorties, dumping approximately 7,000 tons of explosives on targets in France. Over the battle area the attacking planes met several formations of enemy fighters, but the Germans took refuge in heavy clouds.

NIGHT BLOWS

The steady daylight blows on the enemy's rear lines followed a smashing attack by more than 1,000 the Air Force had launched last night when they dropped 1,400 tons of bombs, including six-ton super blockbusters, on the German synthetic oil centre at Gelsenkirchen and four important rail junctions in France.

Targets singled out by the Fortresses this morning were the airfields at Evreux-Fauville, Dreux and Illiers-Combraye, midway between Paris and the fighting lines in Normandy.

DIVE-BOMB TARGETS

Mustangs, Thunderbolts and Lightnings, escorted the bomber escort for the heavy bombers, also carried out offensive patrols before the penetration missions and divebombed a wide variety of targets.

At dawn Marauders and Havocs headed across the channel only four hours after the last Marauders returned from yesterday's attacks on railways, fuel dumps and other military targets in a wide area stretching from just behind the battle lines to far inland.

A German Transocean News Agency broadcast from Berlin reported fierce air battles over the entire invasion area early today and said the intensity was likely to increase through the day.

Transocean claimed that up to 11 a.m. (4 a.m. M.D.T.) this morning 43 Allied planes had been shot down in combats as follows: as any previous invasion air battles.

Transocean reported also that American bombers from Italy penetrated southern Germany today and bombed the Munich area.

Trapper Given Proceeds From Seized Furs

George Magrum, Peace River district trapper, was successful in his supreme court action seeking a declaration that proceeds of a sale of furs confiscated by the crown be restored to him. Judgment in his favor was given by Chief Justice W. C. Ives in a written judgment handed down Tuesday.

A claim by His Majesty the King in the right of the minister of justice seeking a court declaration that the furs or proceeds of their sale were forfeited to the crown was dismissed.

In addition to the declaration that the proceeds of the sale of the furs amounting to $21,577.02 was his property the court ordered that Magrum be paid interest at 5 per cent from March 15, 1943 on that amount. He was awarded $2,000 damages for deprecation of the furs seized, and $800 for expenses and legal fees paid out or incurred.

Defendants to the action were Constable Elmer L. D. McDougall, R.C.M.P., Inspector Birch, R.C.M.P., and Magistrate A. F. Tolzke. The Edmonton Fur Auction Sales Ltd., was joined as defendants as the seized furs had been marketed through the firm. The action against Inspector Birch was dismissed.

SEIZURE OF FURS

The case arose out of seizure of a quantity of furs by Constable McDougall on the ground that they had been taken by poison bait contrary to trapping regulations. In his judgment Chief Justice Ives found there was no evidence to support this. He found also that at the time the seizure was made there was not a scintilla of evidence against the plaintiff.

Japan's Defeat Quicker Than Expected Seen

WASHINGTON, June 13—(AP)

President Roosevelt said last night Japan can be forced "to unconditional surrender or national suicide much more rapidly than has been thought possible."

The President, speaking on a national radio program opening the United States $16,000,000,000 Fifth War Loan drive, said the original strategy of striking Germany first and then turning full war strength into the Pacific can hasten the day of victory on all fronts.

GENERAL OFFENSIVE

"Today we are on the offensive all over the world—bringing the attack back to our enemies."

"Germany has her back against the wall—in fact three walls at once," he said.

"On the south we have broken the German hold on central Italy. . . . On the east our gallant Soviet allies have driven the enemy back from the lands which were invaded three years ago. Great Soviet armies are now initiating crushing blows.

"Over head vast Allied air fleets of bombers and fighters have been waging a bitter air war over Germany and western Europe. They have had two major objectives: To destroy German war industries which maintain the German armies and air forces, and to shoot the German luftwaffe out of the air. As a result German production has been curtailed continuously and the German fighter force now has only a fraction of its former power. . . .

BLOW LONG PLANNED

"On the west the hammer blow which struck the coast of France last Tuesday morning was the culmination of many months of careful planning and strenuous preparation."

Declaring the Japanese have been deprived of any power to check the momentum of Allied forces, Mr. Roosevelt said Japanese shipping has been reduced by more than 2,000,000 tons while tens of thousands of Japanese troops "who now face starvation are surrendering or been cut off from their homeland.

The president said he was called "crazy" when he first suggested United States plane construction of 50,000 airplanes a year.

"Today," he said, "we are building airplanes at the rate of 100,000 a year."

Ilsley Opens Debate

$77,000,000 Contribution To United Nations Relief Fund Planned By Dominion

OTTAWA, June 13.—(CP)—Canada proposes to contribute $77,000,000 to United Nations Relief Rehabilitation Administration this year, Finance Minister Ilsley said last night in the Commons.

Mr. Ilsley made the statement in opening debate on a resolution "to a bill authorizing expenditure of $800,000,000 this year in mutual aid to the United Nations, and in relief to liberated nations.

Canada's contribution to U.N.R.R.A. would represent about one per cent of the national income. Ten per cent of the $77,000,000 would be provided in a form in which U.N.R.R.A. could transfer it into foreign exchange if it so desired. The balance of the contribution would be available for the purchase of supplies and services within the Dominion.

REFERS TO REPORT

In opening the debate, Mr. Ilsley referred frequently to the mutual aid report, tabled earlier yesterday, for the 10 months ended March 31.

Expenditures of war supplies to be transferred to recipient countries in the future amount to $129,123,563.

Mr. Ilsley said mutual air also was provided last year for the French Committee of National Liberation, but shipments to the French only began last March 31.

There had been some delay in completing arrangements for mutual aid to all the recipient countries, and the figures for shipments up to March 31 were not representative of the proportions in which supplies now were going to the various countries.

Mr. Ilsley said he wanted to emphasize that the mutual aid shipments did not represent the only war supplies going to the United Nations from Canada.

PURCHASES MADE

"All countries receiving mutual aid, with the possible exception of China, purchased supplies in Canada during the past year," he said. "Those able to pay for substantial amounts of supplies have been making substantial purchases. Some nations have been able to pay for all their requirements in Canada, and as a consequence they have not requested assistance under the Mutual Aid Act.

"Our sister dominions, South Africa and New Zealand, though obtaining substantial quantities of war supplies from Canada, have not asked to secure any portion of them as mutual aid."

Britain obtained the funds to pay for goods from money paid to the British government by the Canadian forces overseas, from the purchase by Canada of British interests in Canadian war plants and from other transactions.

Harry Jackman (P.C., Toronto-Rosedale) asked why mutual aid at the expense of the Canadian taxpayers was furnished to the West Indies who did not request it and were ready to pay.

EXPLAINS OFFER

Mr. Ilsley said one West Indian Island has asked for flour under mutual aid. As Canada's relations with all the West Indies were on the same basis it was felt an offer should be made to the others.

He said the cost of shipping flour to the West Indies had increased. To the extent that the West Indies lacked dollars to pay Canada for flour they obtained it from Great Britain. That increased the amount of mutual aid Britain required from Canada. The net result was the same whether the aid was provided direct or indirectly through Britain.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (S.C.—Macleod) said he wondered why Canada did not trade with the United Nations and at the end of the year cancel $800,000,000 of the debt of nations receiving mutual aid.

Mr. Ilsley said he believed the ultimate economic outcome would probably be the same.

SAID OUTRIGHT GIFT

G. G. McGeer (L.—Vancouver Burrard) said the mutual aid represented an outright gift.

Mr. Ilsley said it was a contribution to the common cause.

Mr. McGeer said Canada's contributions through mutual aid and in loans totalled about $3,000,000,000. This meant Canada had contributed more proportionately than the United States had through lend-lease.

One of the outstanding things of mutual aid was that it was being financed entirely by the Dominion.

"It has shown that Canada has found her financial independence," he said.

When peace comes there was no reason for Canada to go outside the Dominion to find money to finance the building of Canadian industries, Mr. McGeer said.

The resolution was reported out of committee of the whole and the mutual aid bill was given first reading.

North Edmonton Veterans Hold Smoker Meeting

With J. Gordon Butler, commanding officer, in the chair, the North Edmonton Battalion, Veterans' Volunteer Reserve, held a smoker Monday night at headquarters.

Guests included H. J. Wilson, K.C., chairman of the executive board of the province for the V.V.R.; Col. F. C. Jamieson, V.D., member of the board; Percy Johnson, officer commanding the South Side battalion; Norman Lee, second-in-command, and J. L. Irwin, adjutant, South Side battalion; E. C. Emmott, who has instructed the battalion in first aid work; A. Blair Patterson, who entertained with tricks of magic; and G. A. Kevan, who was accompanist for community singing.

CONGRATULATES UNIT

Mr. Wilson congratulated the unit on the continued interest its members have shown in the work for which it was organized. Col. Jamieson warned against a "feeling of over-confidence" in the present phase of the war. While it appears a French front has been successfully opened, for which all should be thankful, much hard fighting is yet to be done before a final stage is reached, and "we must all pull our full weight in every capacity to reach that end," the speaker declared.

The commanding officer announced a North Alberta target shoot meet to take place on Sunday next, June 18, to which all V.V.R. units north of Red Deer have been invited. North Edmonton members will meet at headquarters at 10 a.m. sharp, to proceed to the targets area.

ANNOUNCE WINNERS

Winners were also announced of expert shields in shooting, as follows: W. R. Cutlan, W. Gardiner, S. Leng and Roy Cox; while E. Bond and H. P. Read won riflemen badges.

A motion picture, "Divide and Conquer," was shown.

Harold Cruickshank was the organizer and master-of-ceremonies for the affair.

In Ten Months

Canada Spends $912,603,220 On War Supplies for Allies Under System of Mutual Aid

OTTAWA, June 13.—(CP)—Canada spent $912,603,220 on vitally-needed war supplies given her Allies under the mutual aid plan in the 10 months ended March 31, Munitions Minister Howe announced yesterday in the Commons.

Mr. Howe, touching briefly on the mutual aid program in the period May 20, 1943, to March 31, 1944, tabled the Mutual Aid Board's report which disclosed details of the assistance Canada is providing under the scheme which makes materials and services, rather than money and credit, available to Canada's allies.

Mutual aid has provided planes, ships and food for Britain; wheat for China; aluminum and base metals for Russia; guns for China and vehicles for Australia.

WORKERS BENEFITTING

Canadian workers are benefitting from the mutual aid program. For each Lancaster bomber airframe built approximately $140,000 goes into the pay envelopes of the men and women of Victory Aircraft at Malton, Ont.; every 10-000-ton cargo ship built in Canada provides about $50,000 in direct payrolls to workers in British Columbia or Quebec.

Most of the balance of the cost goes to men and women in mines, mills and factories, where materials and equipment are produced.

War material supplied to the United Kingdom runs all the way from Lancaster bombers to binder twine and up to march 31 had a value of $723,754,000.

767 PLANES PROVIDED

The report showed 767 planes provided to the United Kingdom to March 31, including 42 Lancasters and 102 Mosquito bombers.

Armored fighting vehicles included 2,014 universal carriers, 202 armored cars and 762 mounts for 25-pounder guns.

Among the ships were eight minesweepers, 534 military landing craft, 28 tugs, 91 cargo ships and 16 trawlers. Guns and small arms sent had a value of $61,282,-and shells and ammunition $80,341,000.

Foodstuffs and general farm products provided the United Kingdom under the mutual aid program had a total value of $169,034,000 with bacon at $83,947,000, the largest item. In addition Canada sent 24,136,587 bushels of wheat; 2,208,516 bags of flour; 73,502,482 pounds of cheese, 938,010 cases of canned fish and vast quantities of dehydrated food and other farm products.

FARM MACHINERY

To assist the United Kingdom in her own agricultural production Canada supplied large numbers of ploughs, drills, binders and threshers.

Aid to Russia has been largely in the form of raw materials and food.

In the period May 20, 1943, to March 31, 1944, assistance given Russia totalled $23,282,292.

Canadian supplies to Russia in the period covered by the report included 13,500 tons of aluminum, 11,700 tons of lead, 1,500 tons of nickel, 120,000 tons of flour, 10,000 tons of wheat and large quantities of explosives.

The mutual aid assistance to Russia has included a provision for servicing and repairing Soviet vessels in Canadian ports and furnishing complete lines of steel-making equipment.

Prior to the introduction of mutual aid substantial quantities of Canadian supplies were made available to Russia as diversions from the United Kingdom contracts in Canada. From Oct. 1, 1941, to March 31, 1944, these diversions—now earmarked as Canadian—included 1,223 tanks, 1,348 Bren carriers, 29 sets of Radar equipment, 30,000 tons of aluminum and 27,000 tons of copper.

STOCKED IN INDIA

Quantities of Canadian-made war supplies are being stocked in India ready to be made available to China as soon as land routes into the country are opened.

Supplies shipped to date include "substantial quantities" of six-pounder, anti-aircraft, Bren and Sten guns; signal and wireless equipment and vehicles. Total expenditures on mutual aid to China in the period May 20, 1943, to March 31, 1944, was $10,045,253.

C.C.F. Nominee Admits Recall Papers Signed

explained "there is nothing compulsory about these recall papers in so far as the provincial office is concerned. The matter lies with the constituency executive."

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUNDURN, Sask., June 13.—(CP)—Rupert D. Ramsay, Progressive Conservative provincial leader, said in an election address yesterday that leaders of co-operatives should make clear immediately their movement was open to all, and was not socialist.

Speaking in support of Hubert Cannon, Progressive Conservative candidate in the Hanley constituency, Mr. Ramsay said that the terms co-operative and co-operative were being used as synonymous, and "the C.C.F. claims to be the father and mother of the co-operative movement; which is not right."

FORMED BEFORE C.C.F.

The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, a large co-operative, had been formed before the C.C.F. No co-operative movement must be broader than any political party, but unless co-operative leaders stated they were not political, then the government would become involved and opposing political groups within it would hamper its progress.

Mr. Ramsay said national policies had not been developed so as to give Saskatchewan "a fair deal." Saskatchewan would be the "keystone province" in food production for the world and there should be a long-range program to develop agriculture.

Saskatchewan students now were a "product for export" and the political patronage system had become so big it could not be controlled. There was a tendency for the present provincial Liberal administration to be nominated from Ottawa by one or two men. Election of the C.C.F. would mean "running Canada's army style."

SPEAKER "INSULT"

Mr. Cannon said that if sufficient "pressure" had been put on the federal government flax and brome seed processing plants would have been established in the west instead of the east. He said it was an "insult" to Saskatchewan to see an influx of C.C.F. speakers from other provinces to participate in the election campaign which ends June 16.

TORY RAPS LIBERALS ON WAR INDUSTRIES

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

SASKATOON, June 13—(CP)—Alfred Bence, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Saskatoon, said at a Saskatchewan election campaign meeting last night that the Liberal provincial government had failed in two years to persuade the federal government for the establishment of war industries in Saskatchewan.

"We would have been more effective and economically sound to have kept our people in the province to work in industries established in the province," he said. "It would have resulted in conditions being more favorable when young men return."

CRITICIZES BRIEF

Mr. Bence said that a Saskatchewan government presentation to the reconstruction conference on reconstruction had been "poorly prepared." It contained replies from only 30 per cent of the municipal concerns which had received questionaires about employment possibilities and the like.

"They (the Liberals) only think of industrialization when they think they can get a few votes," he continued.

The federal Liberal government had said there would be floor prices for farm products, "but I think that if the floor prices plan were acceptable to Saskatchewan it would have been announced before the election. I think the prices will be closer to the basement than the floor."

H. O. Wright, Progressive Conservative candidate for Saskatoon, said he believed that provincial government, in setting the advance poll hours from seven to 10 p.m. yesterday, Tuesday and Wednesday, intentionally sought to disfranchise as many as possible of the persons who would be traveling on election day.

HELD NOT SUITABLE

The hours and days chosen were not suitable, he said. Many travellers had to leave their homes on Sunday.

Advance poll officials at Saskatoon said 129 ballots were cast during the three hours last night, a "fairly heavy" vote for an advance poll.

ALBERTA EDUCATION SYSTEM IS URGED

REGINA, June 13. — (CP) — Educational opportunities have not been widely disseminated in Saskatchewan under the present government and there "is desperate need for improvement," said John G. Diefenbaker, member of parliament for Lake Centre ,at an election meeting here last night.

In Saskatchewan, he said, one-third of the children stopped school before they reached grade eight and that only one-fourth of the children finish high school. About one-seventh of Saskatchewan students were able to get a technical education.

URGES ALBERTA SYSTEM

Saskatchewan's educational system would be patterned after that in Alberta if a Progressive Conservative government was in power, he said.

The educational system in Alberta, since the Social Credit administration, "is vastly superior to that of Saskatchewan," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Progressive Conservative party believed in the establishment of fair pensions for old people, and the reducing of the age limit. "Our policy is to institute a scheme whereby those who earn while young would contribute to the welfare of those who are old."

The press of Saskatchewan has failed to record the activities of the Progressive Conservative party "in a fair manner," he said. "The press leaves the people under the impression that they must support the government or fall ill to the evils of socialistic government under the C.C.F."

LABOR-PROGRESSIVE RAPS C.C.F. PARTY

SASKATOON, June 13—(CP)—A. A. MacLeod, Labor-Progressive member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto Bellwoods, in a Saskatchewan election campaign speech here last night, said the C. C.F. party is "Out of tune with Canada . . . and the whole of advancing humanity."

"The C.C.F. is out of tune with Canada, organized labor, the government of New Zealand, which it extolls, the British Labor party and the whole of advancing humanity because its policy would virtually make the province and the nation an isolated island of depression in a sea of world prosperity.

MEDIEVAL SYSTEM

"They would establish a medieval system of government in which the people would share their poverty," he said. The C.C.F. was "playing down" the war profiteers of the province where they know it is not popular and attacking the Soviet Union where such attacks are popular.

Mr. Macleod spoke in support of Nelson Clarke, Labor-Progressive candidate for Saskatoon constituency.

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

MELFORT, Sask., June 13—(CP)—J. D. MacFarlane, Liberal provincial election candidate in Melfort constituency, said in an address yesterday that the death rate among Saskatchewan children had been cut in half since 1926.

"An announcement by the C.C.F. says that the death rate of children could have been cut in two," he said. "That has already been done. In 1926 it was 80 per 1,000 and in 1941 it was 43 per 1,000."

Mr. MacFarlane said he opposed establishment of state socialism in Saskatchewan, which such a system had never been established in any other agricultural country. The C.C.F. had failed to elect a member in any purely agrarian constituency in Ontario, he said.

End of Flag Controversy Seen as Canadians Carry The Red Ensign Into Battle

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, June 13.—The long standing Canadian flag controversy may now have been settled once and for all, on the ground that a flag which is good enough for Canadian troops to carry into battle in the invasion of Europe is good enough now and forever for the people back home. The flag used was the red ensign.

In the invasion Canadian troops carried the red ensign. Details of the inside story of this were available here today. Several weeks ago, the war committee of the Canadian cabinet approved a resolution which authorized the Canadian army to use the red ensign as a distinctive flag on occasions when a distinction seemed appropriate between Canadian and British troops.

This decision was sent out in army orders and once Canada's invasion troops moved into action they unfurled the Red Ensign. Up to that stage, Canadian troops and military establishments in Britain had used the Union Jack, the national flag of the United Kingdom. Troops in Italy began to use the Red Ensign before it was authorized, and Defence Minister Ralston noticed this during his Italian tour last year.

MUCH CONTROVERSY

The fact Canada has had no distinctive flag of its own has created controversy from time to time and attracted comment in other countries. Canadian legations and embassies abroad have generally used the Red Ensign rather than the Union Jack, an arrangement which avoided complicated explanations why Canada had been using the official flag of the United Kingdom rather than one of its own. Use of the Red Ensign on all Canadian buildings outside Canada has been authorized by order-in-council in 1924.

The Red Ensign contains a small Union Jack on the first quarter next to staff, and the Canadian coat of arms on the fly. When the issue came up in parliament last June, Prime Minister King dealt with a question raised by a Quebec Nationalist member by saying the Red Ensign had been used for more than 70 years and that a flag specially distinctive of Canada was essential.

Several groups in Canada, chiefly in Quebec, have been advocating adoption of a new flag. Members of parliament interested in the issue have brought it up in the house from time to time. The war committee's action will likely clarify the flag situation and make the red ensign generally acceptable.

ESTABLISHED USAGE

Obviously the cabinet has decided to rely on established usage, and this may mean the Canadian people will settle on the red ensign rather than continue controversy over a flag.

Other British Dominions have their own flags, adopted by acts of parliament. The Australian flag, for instance, was designed by a high school boy who won a national contest for the best flag design. The flag issue has an interesting sidelight in Quebec.

After two or three years' absence, the French tri-color flag has made its re-appearance in the province of Quebec across the river from Ottawa. The tri-color is in evidence everywhere in honor of the invasion and the impending release of France from German occupation.

Announce New Plan Mailing Cigarettes

OTTAWA, June 13—(CP)—Postmaster General Mulock announced yesterday in the Commons that effective June 19 a new system will go into effect for the sending of cigarettes to the armed forces in Italy.

Under the new system, addressed labels, representing cigarettes ordered in Canada, will be airmailed to Italy. On arrival there post office officials will affix the labels to cigarettes drawn from a large reserve, built up by bulk shipments, and send them on to the addressee.

Mr. Mulock said it was hoped a similar system would soon be enforced for troops in Britain and France. He said that possibly within a month armed forces personnel overseas will be able to buy cigarettes direct from depots at a cost of $1.00 for 300 cigarettes.

Under the new system, persons sending cigarettes to armed forces in Italy should order cigarettes as at present from tobacconists or tobacco companies. The sender will be relieved of any possibility of loss. The post office department will assume the responsibility for any loss.

About the only change in the present ordering procedure is that not more than 300 cigarettes at a time may be sent by one individual. This does not apply to organizations or societies sending cigarettes in bulk for distribution to the troops in general.

A Knock-Out

Kesselring's 14th. German army in Italy has been knocked into fragments "engaged mainly in stealing each other's transport", according to reports from the Allied headquarters at Naples. As an organized fighting unit it no longer exists, and the disjointed divisions, brigades and battalions are staging a free for all race to the north in whatever transport vehicles they can lay hands on.

Over on the Adriatic side of the peninsula the Marshal's 10th. army has apparently preserved better order and is making slower progress but heading in the same direction. It is on the western side that Mussolini built most of the highways he used to boast about. Which may account for the better pace the 14th. is setting.

This may not mean, probably does not mean, that panic has set in and discipline been thrown to the winds. A general retreat to the prepared positions in the north has evidently been ordered and unit commanders told to get their troops there as soon as possible. The Allied Fifth army however is getting dangerously far up the coastal roads and by turning eastward may cut across the rear of the Nazi 10th. If so, a larger bag of enemy prisoners might be caught than has been taken in any single operation. Thus far, since May 11th, 70,000 have been gathered in.

V

If Italy is now a minor theatre, the campaign there has been well conducted. The Canadians on that front have the satisfaction of knowing that they have taken part in operations which have been splendidly successful and are making heavy reductions in the strength of the Fuehrer's fighting forces. The blow that was dealt the Hitler line was a clear knock-out.

V

Time to Get in Line

The call has gone out for recruits for our active army. The immediate need is for 48,000, to keep the reserves in Britain up to strength as drafts are made to fill gaps in the fighting lines across the Channel. Unless that is done, the striking power of our army at the invasion front may dwindle while our Allies are pouring more and more men into the combat area and Rommel moves reserve troops to the point of attack.

It has never failed, either in this war or in the First Great War, that recruiting speeded up when casualties from fresh battle were known to be sustaining losses. It may be confidently supposed that the like reaction will occur now. Canadians of military age and fitness will not want to remain at home and let Canada's sector of the fighting front grow narrower for lack of men to replace those who become casualties.

During the long years when the Canadian units were training in England it was not strange that enlistment should lag. There was no immediate urgency in sight to stir prospective recruits to action. Certainly there was no great stirring in the idea of going overseas to spend months and perhaps years tramping around parade grounds and highways. Even the knowledge that long training was needed to qualify men for present-day war could not offset the news which came back as to the "fed up" temper prevailing in our divisions held so long inactive in the old lands.

That phase of the war has ended. Our army is now in battle on two fronts and losing men as a matter of course. The challenge is direct, and could not be more urgent. The time has come to get into uniform. The sooner the better, because training is still as necessary as it ever was; and the man who gets the most training will be best fitted to take care of himself.

Loans to Improve Farms

The House of Commons has given second reading to the Farm Improvements Loan Bill, which means that the principle of the measure has been approved. It will be gone over in detail in committee and may emerge considerably changed, but the second reading is assurance that the plan will be embodied in legislation at the present session.

The purpose is to encourage the banks to make farm loans at a low rate of interest for a wide variety of improvements, the loans to run for a number of years where the amount is considerable. To make this practicable, the Government proposes to guarantee the banks against loss up to a percentage of the loans made.

The rate named in the bill is 5 per cent, the Government's guarantee limit 10 per cent, and the maximum loan period 10 years. These figures may be changed in committee, and it is not unlikely that some provision will be made to waive interest payments for a year in which borrowers sustain crop losses.

Five per cent money for the making of general improvements in farm property and the purchase of equipment will be something new in western Canada, new and welcome. A lower rate would of course be still more welcome. The 10-year term seems reasonably long, and a 10 per cent guarantee to the banks should be sufficient to interest them in carrying on an active loan policy.

There is precedent to show that the arrangement does not involve serious risk to the taxpayers. In the case of the Home Loans Improvement Act the Government guaranteed losses up to 15 per cent. But the actual rate of loss has been less than one per cent. There is no apparent reason why it should be heavier under the general improvements loan plan.

V

Clearing the Flank

Moscow got tired waiting for the Finns to oust the Nazis, and is doing it for them. The new offensive launched by the Red army on that front is evidently aimed to smash that menace to the Russian flank and open a road across Finland to Norway.

It is no quite clear whether this campaign is directed in reality against the Finns, or against the Nazi garrisons, with more or less official Finnish sympathy and acquiescence. A good deal the world does not know about has been going on between Helsinki and Moscow. The sense of the situation has seemed to be that the Finns would make peace if they could do so without having to turn on the Hitler troops and fight them lone-handed all over their country.

There is at least room to hope that the Finnish officials have been doing a little of the under-cover negotiating so dear to the heart of Von Ribbentrop, and have agreed to make terms if the Russians will solve the deadlock by invading Finland—and thus give them a chance to quit the war without subjecting their people to Nazi vengeance.

That may not seem very probable, but this war has turned up a good many improbables, as the Allies have cause to know.

V

An A.P. correspondent who returned on the Gripsholm says the hope in Germany is to fight until a stalemate is established, and then end the war with a negotiated treaty. This is direct confirmation of what has been generally understood to be the dodge the Nazis will try to pull off, now that their chances of making themselves masters of the world have faded away. The Allied peoples will do well to keep this contemplated trickery in mind. Peace manoeuvres on the part of Berlin will have to be interpreted in the light of this characteristic Prussian plot.

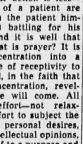
Prayer is Essential to Success of the Invasion

But Civilians Must Work As Well as Pray for Victory

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

All reports from the great battle-front state that our armies and those of our allies accepted the order to go with one predominant emotion—confidence. The same feeling can be recorded at home. When an army or a nation have made up their minds and concentrated their emotions to something necessary, but dangerous, the tension mounts until action is taken.

It is the same in individual life, when a person must undergo a major operation. First he tries to avoid the information telegraphed to the brain by symptoms. Then the physician tells the brutal truth. Then the ordeal is anticipated with fear. But as the time approaches, his human economy, mental and physical, accustoms him to the idea. He weighs his chances calmly, in consideration of all the factors. And finally, he goes to the operating room with pleasure, so intense is the relief from previous strain.



Dorothy Thompson

For us, who must watch this great operation from afar the strain is less lifted, for our action is less—as the relatives of a patient are more physically active than the patient himself, when he is battling for his life. We pray, and it is well that we pray. What else is prayer? It is the utmost concentration into a most inward state of receptivity to the universal power. The faith that through this concentration, revelation and release will come. All true prayer is effort—not relaxation. It is the effort to subject the self, the ego, the personal desires, and the purely intellectual opinions, and open one's self to a purpose and truth higher than these. Thus, as the King of England said, we pray not that God will do our will, but that we will do the will of God.

Only the other day, Mr. Churchill remarked that in his opinion the war was becoming less and less 'ideological." Yet our leaders in calling upon their nation to pray, reaffirm that it is profoundly ideological. General Eisenhower, President Roosevelt, in his prayer, and the King of England spoke of our "crusade." But a crusade is a battle for power. It is a fight against evil. It is a battle for God. It is a struggle to bring about on earth the unity of the world—in the immortal words of Lincoln, uttered in the second inaugural address—a struggle with "firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right."

I am positive that when the President said that he meant his prayer for himself and for us all, that in all our acts we should be guided by the loftiest aims revealed to us.

His rejection of the lust for conquest echoes in all of us ". . . to end conquest and domination . . . to let justice arise, and tolerance and good will among all Thy people."

But when we pray for guidance we assume an obligation. If, in our moments of greatest concentration, in which we pray before God for the best in our natures, we receive intimations of truth, our prayer is unanswered unless we accept that truth. For God made men free, and that freedom includes even the freedom to betray him. Thus, every man must answer his own prayer as best he can.

If, therefore, we pray for our sons we must work for them. The thousands of persons who rushed, as the news of the invasion broke, to the blood donors were answering their own prayers. Every man who, praying for speedy victory and an end of slaughter, increases his output at the work bench or assembly line is answering his own prayer. Everyone who, pleading for a purer and more unified nation, lays aside old prejudices is answering his own prayer. And everyone who, praying that our arms be truly blest of God, concentrates his hatred upon the real evil, and not against large sections of mankind as such, is answering his own prayer.

The help of God is implored by all sides, in this as in all wars. But God does bless their arms, as such. He has no chosen people. He has only the people who choose him. Whether they fight for God or against him is only determined by their intentions and by their actions, as revealed to them through His truth.

The justice of a cause is fluid before the perfect justice. It cannot be established once and for all. It must be re-established and reaffirmed by daily actions and decisions. A praying nation is a nation with a mobilized conscience. Prayer does not absolve that conscience. It binds it.

The instinct to pray is the instinct to summon aid in calling forth the best in ourselves which, if needed, will give us the only true victories—not over conquest nor triumph, but justice and peace.

Canadian Heroes of the Air

Bombers Get Little Public Credit for Great Work They Do

By GRANT DEXTER

LONDON: An astonishing fact about Canada's war effort is that the public at home has come to appreciate the size and force of the R.C.A.F. overseas.

The activities of the army and the navy are publicized in the official communiques as well as in the despatches of war correspondents. But the R.C.A.F., a part of the R.A.F. is rarely singled out, except by the special coverage provided by the Public Relations officers attached to it. "Official" communiques seldom speak of the exploits of Canadian airmen.

This fact is not recorded in a critical way. Under the circumstances it is inevitable. The result, however, has been a failure to impress upon the people the importance of the contribution our air force is making. Right now about one-third of the R.A.F. (including the Canadian Bomber Group) are Canadian airmen. For the most part, they are scattered throughout the various units of the R.A.F. But a substantial number of them have been brought together, under the command of Air Vice-Marshal Harold A. Sharp, C.B., D.F.C., as the Canadian Bomber Group. A group is a unit and a very large one, approximately equal in numbers to an army.

Although the Canadian Bomber Group—which flies four-motored bombers—is not yet completely filled out, it has been sending scores of planes on nightly raids. When fully established, it will send many more. What this means is that this group, alone, has frequently dropped 1,000 tons of bombs on an enemy target. Not so very long ago the first 1,000-ton raid by the R.A.F. was regarded as a big one. Today this is being done by the Canadian Group which comprises only one-tenth of the total R.C.A.F. strength overseas.

The record being made by the Canadian Bomber Group is enviable. Although lacking its full strength it now stands second highest among the R.A.F. Bomber Groups. Comparison is made on the basis of performance.

But another reason why the Canadian Bomber Group has not registered at home is that long-range heavy bombing is a development of the present war. There is no tradition back of it, as with the army and the navy. When people think of the air force, the names that leap to mind are those of fighter pilots—the Bishops, Barkers, Beurlings. The drama of fighter combat captures the public imagination. Who ever heard of an ace bomber pilot? How can one dramatize the long flight in the all but defenceless plane, the dropping of many tons of explosive, and the very human reactions? Yet, without detracting a pinpoint from the glory that attends upon the fighter pilot, each ton of the two strikes the enemy hardest—the crew which obliterates a key industry, or the crew which shoots down an enemy fighter? And which form of battle takes the heaviest toll—the man who wins in combat, or the lads who have no real hope of being able to strike back and who know that they are virtually defenceless under the guns of their adversaries?

The heavy bombers are built to carry maximum loads, not to fight. They fly at night because in a comparatively few minutes they are clay pigeons. Every front gun, tail gun, and top gun will do their utmost to avoid combat. The most efficient crew, as a rule, is the one which has never fired a shot. Their job is to get there and get home.

The heavy bomber takes off in darkness. From the moment the plane's door is shut, the crew is severed from physical contact first with the ground and later with friendly territory. They are on their own and are in constant peril until they have landed and dispersed. They sit in cramped quarters. Their only real hope is that they will see danger in time to evade it.

These reasons, perhaps, account for the fact that the bomber crews have received less attention from the people at home than other branches of the service. Actually, they deserve and require more. War correspondents seldom visit them. For some reason war correspondents prefer the army. The task of publicizing Bomber Group falls almost entirely on Public Relations officers. The head of the air force Public Relations overseas is WC. Rod McNeil, formerly of the Canadian army press gallery, and the news editor is Flight-Lieutenant Vic McKenzie, formerly of the Canadian Press at Montreal. FL. Baker, incidentally, knows the bomber business from A to Z. He commanded his tour last September and saw service in the European and Mediterranean theatres.

The senior P.R.O. in the Canadian Bomber Group is Squadron-Leader T. C. McCall, formerly of the Simcoe Reformer. P.R.O.'s are attached to most of the squadrons. At the station described in these pieces, the officer was Flight-Lieutenant H. W. "Mac" Eggleston, formerly of the Star-Phoenix, Saskatoon. At a nearby station was Flight-Lieutenant Jack Coldwell, formerly of the Toronto Star, and the son of the C.C.F. leader. All newspapermen are in uniform. They live with the air force and do their utmost to write the story. They are always present when the aircraft come home. And they are highly popular with the fliers.

Even so brief a visit with the Canadian Bomber Group reveals services which the people at home could do for these men but which have been grievously neglected. The greatest lack is reading material. Owing to the paper shortage in the United Kingdom it is very hard to buy magazines or books. These men would like newspapers from their home town. They want magazines and popular fiction. They require reading material as a means of relaxation. Many spoke of the difficulty of getting to sleep after the nervous tension of a night's operation. If they had a magazine or book handy, it would help. The life they live makes acute and continuous nervous strain unavoidable. Reading would be a ready way of escape from it. It is not necessary to know somebody in the group. If reading matter is mailed to the headquarters of the Canadian Bomber Group, it will be distributed promptly.

Tariffs Are Still the Panacea

C.C.F Follows Bennett in Offering Protectionism As Cure

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

It is almost 15 years since Mr. R. B. Bennett promised to cure every ill, real and imaginary, which afflicted Canada by the administration of magical doses of protectionism. He was swept into office on his guarantee to cure unemployment with protectionism or perish in the attempt. He perished.

Today, another party is trying the same game. The cure that it is prescribing for all ills, real and imaginary, which afflict Canada is still protectionism, though the word has been changed to "socialism." The arch-protectionist party is, of course, the C.C.F. The only difference in essence between the economic thinking of the C.C.F. and Mr. Bennett is this: Mr. Bennett would have kept the tariff-protection industries in private hands. The C.C.F. would nationalize them, make them government-owned.

Government ownership of industry has always meant protectionism and autarchy wherever it has been attempted—in Germany, for example, Russia, Japan, and the foreign trade, despite its huge population, has always been a small fraction of Canada's trade.

This, of course, is inevitable. As Mr. John T. Flynn, the American economist, wrote in a recent book:

"The first condition of planned economy is that it shall be a closed economy. . . . If you look to it that your economy you must lay down rules for the behavior of manufacturers and distributors and farmers with the object of getting the highest production with the highest wages and the best standard of living. Obviously you cannot let anybody inside that economy compete who does not comply with these regulations. . . . Having required this of the producers of your own economy, you cannot permit the producers of . . . any other country to bring their products into our markets and sell in competition with our producers upon whom we have imposed all these costly regulations. You cannot impose these regulations on the producers of China and U.S. and Britain. Hence you must exempt the foreign producer and the same reason that you would exclude an American producer who refused to produce under the requirements of your planned society."

When the government itself is operating all the industries, as the C.C.F. proposes in Canada, when it guarantees to maintain these industries and employ all their workers, then protectionism must become complete; for foreign imports cannot be allowed to compete with the state's industries because this would undermine the whole socialist plan.

The state industries, therefore, must be protected from competition and they must maintain high prices to satisfy the workers on whom the socialist government relies for its support and life. It is by raw products, the farmer, who depends on the sale of his products in the world market, who must pay the high prices of the state industries.

There is another obvious reason why a socialist government will not promote a maximum of foreign trade. The C.C.F. proposes that all foreign trade shall be conducted by the government, except in the case of minor exports where a government product of any variety may export his goods if he gets a government license—that is, if his operations do not damage the over-all plan of socialism. The government itself would take over from the farmer or the fisherman or lumberman all his products and trade them in the world market, by a system of barter, the system used by Germany before the war.

No government will seek foreign markets with the energy and drive of a private trader. The private trader must find a market or go out of business. The whip of competition is constantly on his back, and it is through the private trader, seeking out markets all over the world, that Canada has become one of the world's five greatest traders and has built a standard of living exceeded only by that of the United States.

The government trading board, however, is under no such compulsion to find markets. If it does not find them it does not go out of business. It still gets its market if it trades or not. And not having to trade, and being restricted by the government's determination to protect its own industries, however uneconomic they may be, the government board can offer to socialist government will reduce trade to a minimum.

The C.C.F. plan, in fact, contemplates only enough exports to pay for essential imports of articles we cannot produce in Canada and in this is a replica of the Conservative tariff policy. It does not accept the principle on which the whole prairie economy is founded, namely, that Canada can find prosperity best by exporting a maximum of such products as wheat which is can produce better and more cheaply than other countries. This premise has been confirmed all through the history of the West, a year of prosperity for exports, at good prices, has been followed by a year of prosperity for the West and the nation at large. A year of poor exports has been followed by a year of hard times.

"The Day"

LONDON DAILY MAIL.

An extra 30,000 tons of parcels for British prisoners of war in Germany is to be stored in Geneva under arrangements just concluded by the International Red Cross Committee.

The committee feared that, with the gradual breakdown of communications throughout Europe and the possibility of a general upheaval at the Second Front opens, feeding arrangements for British captives might be seriously affected.

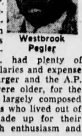
Consequently the Red Cross are accumulating huge stocks of parcels at places where they can be rushed to Germany.

They Didn't Use to be Polite

False Invasion Flash Was Taken in Good Part by Rivals

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—This I am telling you without so much as a suggestion of a snigger, because we all got fretted a bit years passed and our hot young blood cooled, and nowadays Associated and United Press men lunch together, play cards together and drink together, so that I am telling you about, the United Press was an underdog outfit and the A.P. was the aristocracy and this feeling extended even to the wage slaves and assignments. The A.P. had plenty of money and its salaries and expense accounts were larger and the A.P. men generally were older, for the U.P.'s staff was largely composed of unmarried lads who lived out of suitcases and made up for their inexperience with enthusiasm and ambition.



Westbrook Pegler

You may have noticed how polite the U.P. and its relatives have been to the A.P. in its recent embarrassment over the false flash from London on the invasion. No sneering, no leering, no hollering fake or the like of that and, indeed, the hands have been about the same, barring a little ribbing, perhaps.

It wasn't that way in 1918 when Roy Howard telephone from Brest on the Armistice after Admiral Wilson had received the word by telephone from the embassy in Paris and gave Roy full permission to send it along, as any alert reporter would have done. That, at least, had every mark of authenticity, whereas, in the present case, the A.P. seems to have been the victim of one of those dumb, unavoidable accidents. A girl reporter, practicing on a telegraphic printer in London punched out the flash on the tape, contrary to standing orders against cold-deck matter and forgot to tear it up. Twenty-five years ago it would have been the A.P.'s explanation. I would have said they had punched out some canned flashes to save time during transmission, and the A.P. would have said the same had it happened to us.

Back in 1914, the U.P. gave the A.P. a licking on the death of Pope Pius X and, so far as the record shows, the A.P. still insists that the U.P. was a false up or flash that he couldn't live more than a few hours and took a chance. The A.P. never did find out how it happened, nor can I tell you entirely; but I can tell you that His Holiness really was dead when the flash was filed and the A.P. was very badly beaten. Melville Stone, the general manager of the A.P., was very pure and more than slightly officious about that for he even let it be known that he knew about the incoming cables from Rome and elsewhere in Europe and was able to say that a flash had been received in the United States announcing that the Pope was dead. Can you imagine that? Knocked other people's messages. Therefore, the flash must have been faked in the U.P.'s offices in the old World building—a blatantly proceeding, no less.

Mr. Stone had not canvassed all private messages received that day, however, and even if he had he might have passed over the one that arrived at the A.P. bureau recognizing it. For it was just an innocent personnal communication from a man in Rome to a man in New York, asking him to deposit a sum of money, say $1537, to his account. That would mean that Pope Pius X had died at 3:37 that afternoon or 15:37 o'clock continental time.

The Vatican's official announcement, on which the A.P. relied, came many hours later because the Pope was not officially dead until the papal secretary of state had run back to Rome from Naples of wherever he was, and perform the solemn rites by which the death of a pontiff is formally established as historical fact.

So indignant was the A.P., and so confident of its own infallibility, that you would have thought that the Associated Press, itself, and not the Vatican was the authority in this matter. The A.P. said it was so, it wasn't so. But a short while later, the A.P. jumped the Pope several years and killed off the pope's sister, and for long afterward when A.P. men would pull stories on U.P. men for the premature death of Pope Pius, the U.P. men would say that, well, anyway, it died whereas his sister wasn't dead yet.

It was rough-and-tumble business, with no holds barred, and the A.P.'s main trouble was its over-confidence and a too high opinion of itself. It had no respect for competition and simply was incapable of error. Thus it was that in 1915 the A.P. was caught lifting an exclusive United Press story on the first battle of Ypres, filed by the late Bill Shepherd. In New York, the Evening World and Evening Sun published it. Presently, the Sun and World reached London where someone on the Morning Telegraph and A.P. man was stationed. A man in London in turn lifted it and sent it back in the mail service; and so one month after Shepherd's story had been published in the United States in the papers then served by the United Press, the U.P.'s story credited to the A.P. showed up verbatim in the Washington Star, published by the president of the Associated Press, no less, credited to the A.P.

But, as I say, we have all got refined in the meanwhile so that now, when the A.P pulls a colossal and historic mistake and blames it on a girl, our boys say, yes accidents can and will happen and please accept our sincere sympathy.

Conduct

BALTIMORE SUN.

Approximately 100,000 boys and girls of Baltimore's junior high schools have adopted a five-point "behavior code" designed to keep down the statistics on juvenile delinquency.

"I will never knowingly, by word or deed, injure any one's person, feeling or property in any manner," reads the first of five pledges.

The other four really need not be quoted, for if the first—a true statement, in effect, of the Golden Rule—were universally observed, we should indeed see the end not only of juvenile delinquency but of adult crime as well.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is usually relieved by proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, the druggist will gladly return your money.

Air Power

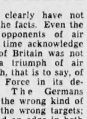
Blast Against Air Power

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

A Soviet aviation officer, Lieutenant General Zhuravlev, recently came out with a blast against the air power theories held by the vast majority of American and British airmen. Writing in the authoritative Moscow journal, War and the Working Class, he denounced our reliance on air power as a "pernicious" idea. In support of his attack he cited three sets of facts in the present war, which I shall examine below.

The Russo-German war has been entirely a land struggle. This was in part fixed by the fact that the two nations, being on the same continent, are in direct surface contact. It was fixed also by the circumstance that both countries had prepared for a land war and had built their respective air forces primarily as auxiliaries to their armies.

Russian views on air power are consequently colored by their own particular experience, which, of course, does not apply universally. This is not the first time they have shown themselves out of step. Snap judgments on special problems facing adversaries separated by a water interval, whether an English channel or an ocean. But let us look at the specific arguments advanced by General Zhuravlev.



de Seversky

The first is the threadbare one that the German Luftwaffe, in its all-out effort in 1940, failed to overcome England in the Battle of Britain.

The Russians clearly have not caught up with the facts. Even the most diehard opponents of air strategy by this time acknowledge that the Battle of Britain was not a failure but a triumph of air power—a triumph, that is to say, of the Royal Air Force in its defensive action. The Germans brought to bear the wrong kind of aviation against the wrong targets; the defenders had an edge in both quality and strategic ideas.

VIRTUALLY DEFENCELESS

The Nazi bombers attacking England were virtually defenceless. It was like sending an army equipped with bows and arrows against an adversary equipped with machine guns. Our bombing planes today, by contrast, are well defended, taking a heavy toll of the enemy's fighter planes. When two forces clash, one necessarily loses, but that hardly discredits aviation as a strategic weapon.

The Russian airman's second argument is that Germany still holds firm despite the great recent bombings. He fails to take cognizance of the fact that the all-out strategic bombardment of Germany was undertaken after a great delay which enabled the enemy to strengthen his defenses; that the magnitude of the attack is far smaller than it should and could have been if we had channeled our main efforts into air power; and finally, that the planes themselves are below the performance levels possible at the present stage of aeronautical science.

General Zhuravlev might also consider the important fact that the effects of aerial attack make themselves felt with a certain time lapse. In land battles, results are instantly evident and measurable in mileage. In sky battles the consequences are concealed for some time. We simply do not know at this writing with any degree of precision to what extent Germany's ability and will to resist has been weakened by air assault. To write off the effort as a failure is, to say the least, premature.

The third point raised in the Soviet article is that air power did not succeed in helping Casino on the Italian front despite full-parade bombardment. In this the Russian general follows a fallacious line of reasoning laid down by a good many American critics of air power in the past weeks. All of them are guilty of a sad confusion. They are making strategic deductions from what was a purely tactical action in support of the land forces.

PROVES NOTHING

The ground commanders wished to destroy an obstacle in the path of their land forces and called on air power to pulverize it. Air power did pulverize it. If the said ground commanders then found that it was difficult for their foot soldiers to take Casino in that puverized state, it certainly was not the fault either of the aviation or the artillery. The whole thing was an army operation in which the airplane simply supplemented the artillery. Whatever it may prove about ground operations, it proves exactly nothing about the strategic use of air power.

I can readily understand why the Russians play down air power. Their own air force would have been won by old-style surface slugging, but that scarcely establishes military laws applicable under different conditions. The Russians on many occasions reported having charged successfully against tanks with their cavalry, but that does not mean that cavalry is superior to tanks.

Warfare is continually becoming more technological. The Anglo-Saxon powers are unquestionably far ahead of Russia in modern technology. Our strategy should therefore be in line with the kind of power we possess. What is effective for the Russians may not be for us, and vice versa.

Canadian Invasion Losses "Moderate" House Is Informed

OTTAWA, June 13—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston said in the Commons yesterday that "so far our losses in France have been moderate."

Answering question from Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, Col. Ralston said:

"I am not in a position to make any statement, to the extent of giving numbers or anything of that kind. I think the most I can say, in view of the messages which have been received, is that so far our losses in France have been moderate, considering the magnitude of the operations in which Canadians were involved."

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

NEW YORK YANKEES during recent days have been encountering considerable difficulty keeping up appearances in the American League, but in that respect, the McCarthymen certainly haven't anything on their once-proud farm clubs, Newark and Kansas City.

Newark Bears, evidently fallen on evil days, have been occupying very modest quarters in the basement of the International League for some time now. And Kansas City did make a spurt all the way from seventh to sixth place last Friday, but got pushed back during the week-end sessions.

And apparently little assistance can be expected by either Newark or Kansas City from their once-rich relations, who at the moment seem to be engaged in something of a struggle to keep out of the cellar in the American. The Yankees dropped to sixth place yesterday, just half a game from Philadelphia Athletics and less than a couple away from Washington whom they play today and again Wednesday and Thursday.

BRADLEY'S LUCKIEST BET

HENRY R. KING, the New York turf writer, located Col. Edward Bradley up in the top tier of the enclosure at Belmont Park the other day. The colonel, now 80, is steeped in the lore of horse racing. He still keeps his hand in in a betting way with $5 and $10 wagers, but there was a day when the Colonel really backed his fancy.

Still with Bradley is an employee named Mose Cossman who has been his betting commissioner for 45 years and is constantly at his side. He was spotted placing a $10 note on one of the Belmont entries recently and it led the Colonel to recall an occasion when Mose made a mistake in placing a wager which resulted in a nice win.

"Mose is pretty accurate," the Colonel related, but he does slip once in a while. A few years ago he made one that proved to be a lulu."

THOUSAND TO COVER UP

IT WAS at Saratoga about 10 years ago. I had a nice two-year-old named Bold Lover, but I did not think he could beat a colt owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney. So I told Mose to put $1,000 for place on my horse. When Mose returned from his business with Tom Shaw in the betting ring I asked about the odds he received.

"Nonchalantly Mose replied, 'Shaw gave me top price, 10 to 1.' When I told him my order was for place, he nearly passed out and rushed back to Shaw to correct it. It was too late, though. The market had changed. Bold Lover was 6 to 1, and the bet had to stand. He returned crestfallen. The $1,000 seemed lost and to try and save it I bet the same amount on Bold Lover at 7 to 5.

"A thrilling race followed and Bold Lover beat Mrs. Whitney's colt to the wire by a head and I cashed $11,400. Of course, Mose never would admit that mistake. He says he asked me if I wanted the $1,000 straight and insists I shook my head affirmatively."

Just 10 Less Than Record By Hornsby

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)— New York Monday battered a quintet of Brooklyn pitchers for a 15-9 victory, poling 16 hits and getting help from the Dodger flingers on nine walks and two hit batsmen.

Mel Ott, manager of the Giants, smacked two home runs and a double, increasing his total of extra-base blows for his 19 years with the Giants to 1,001. Rogers Hornsby holds the National League mark at 1,011.

Yesterday's two homers raised Ott's total for the year to 16 and he is well out in front in that department for both major leagues. Ray Cullenbine of Cleveland Indians, current leader in the American, has only eight.

As a result of their win on Monday, the Giants are less than a game away from the third-place Cincinnati Reds.

TORONTO, June 13.—(CP)—The girls on the west coast are all in a dither over a suggestion or proposal to hold a Dominion play-off for the female fastball (that's swank for softball) championship. The suggestion hasn't got beyond the talk stage yet, but there are signs it is receiving favorable consideration, at least, in some quarters.

The Ontario softball body has always had a soft spot for a national playoff, and attempts were made to promote one back in 1937. It fell through that time because of lack of interest, not to mention financial and transportation difficulties. Now that Vancouver is sold on the idea, some action might be stirred up if the girls go at things the right way.

Girls' softball is flying high all through the west and it shouldn't be difficult to promote some keen intersectional play leading to the national finals.

Grounds for suicide:

Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan tells about a pal of his who had a harrowing experience at the Detroit race track. He picked himself a sure thing (and a big one) heavily on it. Then a friend gave him a hot tip, so he bet that one to place, and finally he placed a wager on a nag recommended by another friend, betting it to show. So what happened? The horse he picked to show, won the race; his choice as winner came in second; and his place choice lammed home fourth to the accompaniment of much finger-chawing.

"It's Beyond Me"

Batting of Dixie Walker Amazes Even "Lippy" Leo

By JACK CUDDY

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

NEW YORK, June 13.—Dixie Walker, leading batsman in the major leagues with an average of .416, is displaying such prowess at the plate that even his manager, Lippy Leo Durocher, is pleasantly flabbergasted.

"I never saw anything like it in 20 years of baseball," Durocher chortled Friday night in his private dressing room at Ebbets Field just after the Dodgers' 3-2 victory over the Braves—that's for Walker's double and Mickey Owen's single in the ninth.

Fastidious Leo sloshed some fragrant face lotion onto his beaming puss and declared: "It's beyond me. I can't understand what's happened to Dixie this season. I might have some explanation if it was just a spurt for a week' or 10 days; but he's been a ball of fire since the season opened—been belting the cover off the ball right along."

As Debonair Durocher briskly slicked back his sparse brown hair, a reporter suggested that perhaps the club was pepping up 33-year-old Dixie with vitamins. Lippy spouted a rapid-fire denial into the big mirror. Nope. The club was in no way responsible for Walker's batting spree: the ancient right fielder had improved his hitting amazingly, in some unknown fashion, and to Dixie alone belonged the credit.

EVEN WALKER CAN'T EXPLAIN

The reporters left Durocher and sallied out into the main dressing room, where they cornered tall, angular Dixie before his locker. The slammin' man who is belting a lusty .416 greeted the press genially as he adjusted his shorts. Knife tattings on his right shoulder and left elbow showed where surgeons had operated to rescue him from the injury jinx that has dogged his career.

"I'm not sure myself why I'm hittin' so well," lanky Walker replied in his soft southern brawl. "Maybe it's because I changed to a heavier bat and because I've had a lot of luck. Late last season I changed to an old Chick Hafey model bat. It is two ounces heavier and an inch longer than the one I had been using. My hitting picked up immediately. I went from .260 to the average of .302 with which I finished the season.

"This season I've continued using the same model bat, and I've been helped, of course, by the livelier ball. The reason I changed to the heavier bat last season was because I was lashing at the ball with the lighter bat—not getting a balanced swing. The heavier club made me more reserved with my strokes."

IS DANGEROUS CRIPPLE

Dixie—a modest chap, and the most popular Brooklyn outfielder since the days of Zach Wheat—added: "Perhaps I shouldn't even be talking about my hitting now; its so early in the season, I've got a long, long way to go; and a lot of things can happen before the end of the season, although I'd certainly like to win the league batting championship. I hope this conversation doesn't put the whammy on me."

Dixie—son of Ewart Walker, former pitcher of the Washington Senators—knows all about "whammies". From the angle of injuries, he has been one of the unluckiest players in baseball history during his long career. He is a 4-F'er because of accidents suffered by his fragile frame—a broken leg, two broken collar bones, a snapped ligament in his shoulder, a trick knee, and a displaced elbow socket. But, in the sunset of his career, opposing pitchers find him a dangerous cripple.

A real pins-up girl is San Francisco dancer, Jean Aloise, who keeps in trim, it says here, by dancing barefoot on bowling alleys and nimbly leaping out of range of balls streaking for pins. Keglers keep their eyes on pins—bowling pins, of course.

Oriole Infielder Attracts Interest Big Time Scouts

BALTIMORE, June 13—(AP)—Major league scouts are flocking with the Baltimore Orioles these days. They are eyeing Blas Monaco, flashiest second baseman in the International loop.

Orioles are in second place, just a half-game off the pace of league-leading Jersey City.

As lead-off man, Blas is proving a second clean-up hitter. He is whacking the ball at a .345 clip, having lifted his average 24 points in five battles with Buffalo. All he did was get on base 16 of 25 times, hit .529, including nine safe bingles in 17 official trips. Four of those hits were home runs, one with the bases loaded, and he drove in nine tallies. He is a switch hitter, batting right or left.

Any lead-off man who drives in 32 runs in 44 games is something. As proof of Blas' sharp eye, he has reached base 101 times this season in 188 times to the plate for a .537 average there. Fast afield, he stole 41 bases last year.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong and Ike Davis, who likely will draw a lot of customers into Madison Square Garden Thursday night, hold a notable collection of boxing records . . . and if they perform at all like they did on their last garden appearances, they'll establish another—one that the Garden's air conditioning system won't eliminate. . . . When Henry lost to Ray Robinson (and retired for the second time) this corner was convinced that Henry could lick any welterweight who would step up within hitting range, and he couldn't lick anyone who could duck expertly . . . off his recent loss to Willie Joyce, that still goes. Mr. Davis set a Garden record by knocking out Bob Montgomery virtually 'with one punch. Then against Beau Jack, he couldn't even land one punch. . . .

Slight understatement:

Lieut. Jim "Shanty" Hearn, former Georgia Tech third baseman, overcame an overheated radiator, a flat tire, bad weather and one of the South's better service ball clubs to pitch a no-hit game against Fort Bragg recently . . . This led Buster Maynard, formerly of the Giants, to moan: "There goes one of the best prospects I've seen in a long time," where he learned Hearn belonged to the Cards. . . . A few days later "Shanty" hurled five hitless innings against Maxton Air Base. . . . That evening, while the GI's still were hoarse from cheering him, Hearn remarked: "You know those were the least impressive innings I've ever pitched."

Senators Beat Yankees in 11th For New York's Sixth Setback

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—Washington Senators smashed over a score in the 11th inning of an American League game to down New York 4-3 before 12,650 customers Monday night. It was the sixth straight reverse for the Yankees.

Jake Powell slammed a hit through the infield to score the winning run in the 11th.

The Yankees are now in sixth place, just a half-game above Philadelphia Athletics. The New Yorkers took a two-run lead in the tenth inning, but Senators came right back with a pair to send the game into the eleventh, although Atley Donald was rushed in to relieve Page.

Centre Fielder and Catcher Would Make Cleveland Club

By LOU BOUDREAU
Manager of Indians

CLEVELAND, June 13. — It was nice of some of the New York baseball writers to see the Cleveland club as a quiet American League pennant threat, especially after the Indians lost three straight at Yankee Stadium.

The Indians required a lift in that series and did not get it with Joe Heath in the dugout suffering from a charley horse.

Russ Peters

Allowing for the chances we must take with the draft, I believe the Tribe is a first division outfit.

A centre fielder and a catcher would give us a grand opportunity to win the flag.

Representatives of the Cleveland club attended the winter meetings hoping to swap either Jim Bagby or Al Smith, each a 17-game winner, for a centre fielder, but thought differently of it when southpaw Smith was placed in 1A. We couldn't very well scratch off 34 games. Since then, Bagby has joined the maritime service and Smith has been reclassified 4F.

ROSAR WEEK-END CATCHER

Meanwhile, the Indians are sorely handicapped in centre field, where too many hits trickle through. Heath, Oris Hockett, Jim Seerey and Roy Cullenbine are highly acceptable in left and right fields, and hit with a will, but lack the fielding and throwing requirements of the Grade A major league centre fielder.

Buddy Rosar, in war work, is helping a lot by catching over the week-ends, but we definitely need a catcher. George Susce, a coach, had to be put on the active list to see us through the week. Our only other backstops are Jim McDonnell, up from Wilkes-Barre, and Russ Lyon, a Georgia semi-pro.

Outside of centre field and catching, however, the Indians are sound as a dollar. While we went into a bit of a tailspin with the start of the series in New York, the Indians should do a little more than all right provided we can keep what we have.

KELTNER, REYNOLDS ARE IN

The trouble here is that Ken Keltner and pitcher Allie Reynolds await call by the Navy, Russ Peters is 1A and Heath has been called to take his physical. Peters and Heath may be saved for the club by modified military requirements. So might Keltner were he not already accepted.

With Ray Mack in war work, Russ Peters stepped in to keep the Cleveland infield smooth. Mickey Rocco knows his way around first base.

The Indians have ample pitching—right and left-handed—in Reynolds, Mel Harder, Smith, Ray Poat, Klieman, Kennedy, Klieman, Heving, Red Embree, Paul Calvert, Steve Gromek and Mike Naymick. Kleine, a six-foot two, 193-pound southpaw brought up from Wilkes-Barre, really has it.

Young Lou Boudreau directs the centre fielder he wishes he had.

Prior to being examined and classified 4F because of an arthritic condition in my right ankle, I believed it was vitally necessary for baseball to continue.

I am still of the same opinion, and baseball can be depended upon to do as good a job as possible with the material at hand.

NEW YORK, June 13.—As the St. Louis Cardinals continue to cut their wicked swath through the National League ranks toward another pennant, the biggest question that keeps repeating in that senior circuit is:

Where is Elmer? What has happened to Elmer Riddle?

At the start of the current season, blue-eyed, brown-haired Elmer was regarded as the key pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds—a club that was expected to give the Cardinals stiff opposition because of the Reds' grand pitching, despite the loss of Johnny Vander Meer to service in January.

Pitching has been the Reds' greatest strength since Deacon Bill McKechnie took them over for his first season in 1938. Sharp-featured Bill is generally regarded as the smartest handler of flingers in modern major league history. The Reds won National League flags in 1939 and '40, taking the world championship against Detroit in the latter year. Pitching was the Reds' forte then, as in any season under Deacon Bill.

RIDDLE WON 21 LAST YEAR

PITCHING was expected to make strong contenders of the Reds this season—pitching built around Riddle, who won 21 and lost 11 last year. Only Mort Cooper of the Cards and Rip Sewell of the Pirates equalled him in the number of games won in the National League.

This season, the fast-ball artist from Columbus, Ga., started like a burning haystack. The fogging right-hander let the Chicago Cubs down with three hits on April 19, as the Reds won 2-1. On April 25, he yielded eight safeties to the Cardinals, but coasted to a 10-3 victory.

Then something began happening to his right shoulder. On Decoration Day, he was the losing pitcher in the first game of a double-header with Pittsburgh, being relieved in the eighth. His last appearance was May 7, when removed in the second frame of a game which the Cardinals won, 5-1.

He hasn't pitched since then, because of a sore right shoulder. And there's no telling now when he will take the mound again.

HOPES TO RETURN SOON

WHILE the Reds were touring the east, Riddle passed a week in Philadelphia, being treated by Dr. Charles Van Honk, a muscle specialist. And since the Reds returned to Cincinnati last Thursday he resumed diathermy treatments by the club's trainer, Dr. Richard Rhode.

Riddle believes he will be back in play ultimately. He feels that his arm is responding to treatment. He said yesterday, "The soreness now is practically gone. It's just a question of bringing back the strength to my arm. It's like starting spring training all over again. I must work the arm and shoulder into pitching condition gradually. I don't know how long it will take."

Meanwhile, the Reds are in third place in the National League standing, seven games behind the top-rung Cards. McKechnie has been forced to shift southpaw Clyde Shoun from reliefer to starter; also to start another reliefer—"Black Bill" Lohrman, recently acquired from the Dodgers—who opened the game Saturday in which Cincinnati was blanked 18-0 by St. Louis—causing the fans to groan "Where's Elmer!"

Co-Operation Of Industry "V-Day" Need

TORONTO, June 13—(CP)—Co-operation of industry is needed in the termination of contracts by the government, W. F. Williams, associate financial advisor of the munitions department, said yesterday in an address to the 73rd annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

This co-operation is needed "so that when V-Day dawns, the avalanche of claims which will then descend upon us may be settled speedily, fairly and honestly."

Mr. Williams, also chairman of the settlement review committee, described the steps taken by the committee to settle contracts which have been cancelled by the government as a result of changing war needs.

PRE-SERVICE COURSES

Kenneth Lindsay, member of the United Kingdom parliament, spoke to the war manpower conference on education in industry. He suggested that as in the time of war the country had pre-service training for the young men for the armed services, so the education plan should have pre-service courses for industrial and business work.

"There must be a complete change in all adolescent education," he added.

"The object of industry is not individual profit, but the social welfare of the community. Industry in the post-war era must be to some extent transformed and will be socialistic.

"Never again will the government of Britain permit 2,000,000 men to be unemployed."

W. R. Yendall of London, Ont., in a discussion on the report of the advisory committee on reconstruction, headed by Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill university, Montreal, said full employment did not depend on the size of the national income.

INCOME SECONDARY

"If the Canadian people are fully employed in creating goods and services which find a ready market either at home or abroad, the national income will take care of itself, capital investment in productive facilities will proceed on normal lines, in answer to effective demand, and the general situation will be much sounder than any artificial situation created by efforts to fill a theoretical formula."

Total membership of juniors is about 1,700, she said. Reports of national conveners also were submitted during the day. Irene Hawkes of Edmonton reporting for the west.

Handicap System Suggested

Cardinals Making Runaway Of Race in National League

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, June 13—By this time rival managers are fairly certain that a sieve-like and scatter-arm outfield brings the Yankees back to the pack, but there is genuine apprehension about the Cardinals running away and hiding in the National.

The Red Birds are likely to lose Stan Musial and Danny Litwhiler to the Armed Forces, and the opposition points out that the outfielders easily could be the difference between a runaway and a race.

That failing, the Red Birds might be limited to two strikes and the other side given four against them, as has been suggested.

Don't they put weight on horses, and didn't the basketball rule-makers prohibit beanpoles from interfering with the ball on its downward arc? Regarding the latter bit of legislation, Cpl. Johnny Jones urged that all players standing more than six feet four be made to waddle around on their knees.

Stan Musial

As for winning football games, Corporal Jones, the Saratogian now on the staff of Ice Jungle Mudder, weekly sheet of the Coast Artillery Command in Panama, would shoot backs with GI equipment and make them carry a full field. Coaches would have to follow the advice of Monday morning quarterbacks.

72-OUNCE GLOVES ON JOE

Further explaining his handicap system for all sports, Corporal Jones would have Sgt. Joe Louis wear 72-ounce gloves in his next start, Bowlers with averages of 190 or more would roll with the opposite hand, barefooted and with a ball minus holes.

Winners of more than one tennis tournament would be required to use loosely-strung racquets. Those breaking par in golf would play the following 18 holes with a left-handed niblick.

Milers breaking 4:15 would be called upon to pick up potatoes in their next outing.

ROOSEVELT—REPUBLICAN?

Mae Wests would put swimming stars becoming too bright in their proper places. Stickouts in hockey would play without the business end of the stick. It would be nothing but seven-rail shots and four-ball billiards for Willie Hoppe with the table tilted. Ralph Greenleaf, Andrew Ponzi and other pool sharks would have to bank all shots in the side pocket.

This should solve everything except what to do about President Roosevelt.

He might be forced to run on the Republican ticket.

Conferences Held

Churchill Ashore Three Hours On Normandy Invasion Front

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 13.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill yesterday set foot on French soil for the first time since 1940. He was accompanied by Field Marshal Smuts, Prime Minister to South Africa, and Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the Imperial general staff.

Four years ago he made a dramatic flight to a France collapsing under the blows of a German army to plead vainly with French leaders to carry on the fight.

Mr. Churchill and his companions crossed the channel yesterday on the destroyer H.M.S. Kelvin. While they were aboard the ship joined in bombarding a German position on the northeastern Normandy flank.

THREE HOURS ASHORE

Arriving on the beaches shortly before noon, they spent three hours ashore; lunched with Gen. Montgomery, commander-in-chief of Allied ground forces in France; visited army headquarters; watched troops and supplies land and then steamed through the battle fleet which was bombarding the shore.

During the day the Prime Minister witnessed an aerial dogfight and saw a German raider shot down.

In visiting the beachhead, Churchill had his own way. Admiral Ramsay, naval commander-in-chief, disclosed last week that the Prime Minister had wanted to go along on D-day, and "it took a great deal of persuasion" to leave him behind.

Gen. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the Allied invasion forces, led a party of American military and naval commanders on a tour of the American-held section of the front.

In Eisenhower's party were Gen. Marshall, United States army chief of staff; Gen. Henry Arnold, United States air chief; Admiral Ernest King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, and Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of American ground forces in France.

They drove to within five miles of fierce fighting being waged in the Caretan sector and saw blocking rows of shattered buildings —ruins still burning and smoke rising from all the town.

Mr. Churchill has made several visits to the various theatres of war at but yesterday's visit to the front lines was the most dramatic.

At exactly 12:30 p.m. a grey-green "duck" (amphibious craft) climbed up the yellow sands of the Normandy beach and out stepped the Prime Minister.

SOLDIERS AMAZED

Soldiers engaged in unloading landing craft stood in amazement. Then they recognized the familiar Trinity House cap, the cigar and the two fingers raised in a V sign.

"Blimey! It's Churchill himself!" one private called to another.

Three little jeeps took the party inland toward the battle zone where Mr. Churchill, Smuts and Sir Alan lunched in Montgomery's caravan. Then followed a secret conference where "future" battle plans were discussed.

After lunch Mr. Churchill drove to general headquarters.

Shortly after this discussion the Lufftwaffe came over.

One plane—flying at great height —streaked in from the sea and dropped a stick of bombs across shipping lying in the anchorage.

Three great plumes of water rose into the air. It was a "near miss." The prime minister saw the Nazi shot down.

Deputy Mayor

Ald. Sidney Parsons, who was named deputy mayor for the period June 21 to September 1 at Monday night's meeting of the city council.

Seek Clarification Of Rental Control

Mayor John W. Fry was instructed by city council Monday night to communicate with the proper authorities of the Dominion government asking that where possible, having due regard to the principle of maintaining the price ceiling, the rental regulations be clarified; unnecessary restrictions, if any, removed, and the procedure involved in rental applications and appeals be simplified if possible so as to encourage the renting of all available housing accommodation.

The resolution came before council following representations made by A. L. Marks, Edmonton barrister, on behalf of the Home Owners Protective Association of Edmonton.

It was submitted at a previous meeting by Mr. Marks that the regulations as drafted were so difficult to understand that many home owners were deterred from renting.

Sympathy Motion Passed by Council

Sympathy with T. Z. Garside, K.C., city solicitor, and Mrs. Garside, was expressed in a formal motion passed by city council Monday night in the reported loss of their son, FO. Stanley Garaide, who has been reported missing in air operations over the invasion beachhead in France. The motion, which was introduced by Ald. M. M. Downey, was unanimously endorsed.

What Council Did

Referred complaint from Mrs. H. M. Lovatt, 9328 Jasper avenue, of repeated flooding of her shop in wet weather to the city commissioners, with instructions to check on conditions and take whatever steps are necessary to prevent recurrence of the condition complained of.

Authorized Chief of Police Jennings and Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer of health, to attend a one-day meeting at Calgary, called by the provincial department of public health to discuss venereal disease control. The meeting will be held at the Palliser hotel on Wednesday, July 5.

Referred to the town planning commission for consideration, a proposed bylaw dealing with non-conforming uses to property.

Concurred in the report of the transportation committee which asked that the city commissioners bring in a report on grouping of bus routes asked for by different sections of the city.

Authorized the city engineer to proceed with grading and gravelling construction on 62 street between Ada boulevard and Jasper avenue as a local improvement, and also the lane west of 76 street to the lane south of 112 avenue. Cost of the two projects would be $498.

Authorized payment of a special grant of $2,000 to the Edmonton Library Board to permit wage increases to staff in conformity with those given to other civic servants.

Agreed to pay $75 monthly towards salary and expenses of the Citizens of Edmonton Rehabilitation Council, subject to submission by the council of minutes of meetings held. The grant will continue until the end of this year. It was requested also that the council be asked to appoint an alderman to the Rehabilitation Council's committee.

Received as information reports from the city commissioners relative to the purchase of huts from the United States Army authorities and the erection of tents to relieve the housing shortage, and asked the commissioners for a report showing how rentals charged for this temporary accommodation had been arrived at.

LISBON, June 13.—(AP)—The 1,600-ton wooden Portuguese freighter Marinela, en route to Philadelphia, sank in the Atlantic, according to reports received here yesterday, but the entire crew was saved by the steamship Carina. The Marinela was reported on fire near Bermuda last Saturday.

Request Govt. To Reconsider Day Nurseries

Expressing the opinion that full information was not before the commission that inquired into the need for establishing day nurseries in Edmonton, the city council Monday night by unanimous vote decided to request the provincial government to reopen this matter so that representations can be made by interested parties and organizations.

Council also requested that the government nominate a representative of the city council to the commission in place of Frank Drayton, who is now confined to hospital suffering from a heart ailment.

The request to re-open this question came directly from the Edmonton Council of Social Agencies with S. W. Field, K.C., president of the council, making the submission to the city council.

CLAIM NEED EXISTS

He said that the Council of Social Agencies had accumulated evidence which showed the need for the establishing of a day nursery in the city. He expressed the opinion that the provincial commission had arrived at its decision without full knowledge of the facts.

Mr. Field submitted that conditions had changed since the commission made its decision, and referred to the recent appeal by the Dominion minister of labor asking that more women enter industry.

Ald. A. Bisset, K.C., asked why the Council of Social Agencies did not go direct to the government with its representations. Mr. Field said that there would be greater prestige to the request if it was supported by the city council.

Several aldermen asked if copies of the majority and minority reports had been submitted to the city. They were informed that no written reports had been made by the committee, and that the only intimation given by the government was that given by Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross to Mayor Fry that "neither in Calgary nor in Edmonton was there sufficient need shown for the institution of such a nursery, but that if conditions changed the government was prepared to discuss the matter further at a later date."

STRONGLY SUPPORTED

Nine organizations supported the action of the Council of Social Agencies in asking that the matter be reopened. The motion to ask the government to give further consideration to this question was proposed by Ald. J. H. Ogilvie and seconded by Ald. R. Winslow Hamilton.

Has No Comment On Gen. de Gaulle

OTTAWA, June 13—(CP)—Prime Minister King said yesterday in the Commons he could not comment on the position of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader, and the Allied military authority in regard to government of Allied-occupied France. He was answering a question by Stanley Knowles, acting C.C.F. house leader.

Claim Property Value Reduced Due to Industry

Claiming loss of residential property value due to dust nuisance from materials used and truck traffic, residents in the vicinity of the United Grain Growers', Ltd., and North-West Mill and Feed Co., Ltd., in South Edmonton, property owners in this district, have asked city council to take action to remove the nuisance, or in the alternative to pay compensation to the home owners.

The matter was referred to the bylaws committee for consideration, and the city commissioners and city solicitor were instructed to bring to the committee information, particularly with regard to the city's authority to interfere with industry operating on the C.P.R. right of way.

PROTEST BY LEAGUE

The matter was brought before city council Monday night through the Scona Centre Community league.

A. E. Roseborough, spokesman for the league, said that since the plants had extended operations there had been a loss in value of residential property in the area; that a dust nuisance from materials used, and truck traffic had been created, and that material used caused a most objectionable odor in the neighborhood.

He submitted that the use to which the property was being put by the two companies did not conform with the zoning regulations for the district. This opinion had been given by George H. Steer, K.C., at the request of the league, and he advised the starting of an action seeking abatement of the nuisance and an injunction restraining the companies from continuing to carry on this business and also to seek damages.

Mr. Roseborough submitted that as the companies were not conforming to the zoning bylaw, on a motion of city council it should not be expected that the ratepayers affected should be asked to bear the costs of an action against the companies. He said that as far as residents know, the city council has made no attempt to amend the zoning bylaw to conform to the use now being made of the company's properties.

ASKS FULL REPORT

Ald. A. Bisset, K.C., asked for a full report from the city commissioners and the city solicitor particularly with regard to representations made by counsel for the C.P.R. and the United Grain Growers, Ltd., when the matter was dealt with by city council in 1942.

Support of Fund Asked by Council

Appeal was made to the citizens of Edmonton to support the City of Edmonton Squadron fund in a formal motion unanimously passed by city council Monday night.

Council approved the appointment of the following committee to operate the fund: Ald. F. J. Mitchell, Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, D.S.O., D.F.C., R.C.A.F., Edmonton, nominated by the city, and A. G. Kirstine, G. A. Owen and H. Burden, nominated by the Lions' club. The Lions' club is co-operating with the city in an effort to raise a minimum of $15,000 to send comforts to men of the City of Edmonton squadron.

On the motion of Ald. Sidney Parsons it was decided to send congratulations to the personnel of the squadron on its brilliant exploits in the battle over France, and also to send congratulations to The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and personnel in other units on active service, who were recruited in Edmonton and Northern Alberta, for their splendid showing in the invasion of France and the routing of the enemy in Italy.

Griesbach Sees Collapse Of Germany, Allied Victory Over Europe in Two Months

Predicting the collapse of Germany and complete victory for the Allies in Europe within the next two months, Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., former inspector-general for the Canadian Army in Western Canada, painted a vivid picture of the invasion pattern now unfolding along the French Normandy coast, in an address to the Edmonton Kiwanis Club at the regular Monday luncheon meeting in the Macdonald hotel.

The General also predicted that the Russians would enact atrocities in Germany in retaliation for those committed by the Nazis on Russian soil. "For every thousand Russian civilians the Germans killed in the Soviet, I venture to say that the Russians will take the lives of a thousand Germans when they finally reach Hun soil," he declared.

Gen. Griesbach's speech was the feature of a special Kiwanis program in observance of D-Day, which included a color party from the three armed services and special prayers and music.

President Alex MacDonald was in the chair, and several distinguished guests were present. Those seated at the head table were: Maj. Gen. Griesbach, Maj. Gen. W. W. Foster, C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., special commissioner for Northwest defence projects; Wing Commander Ewart G. Macpherson, O.C., No. 4 I.T.S., R.C.A.F.; Lt. R. M. Bell, R.C.N.V.R.; Surgeon Lt. A. J. C. McCallum, R.C.N.V.R.; Lt.-Agnes Smith, W.R.C.N.S.; Capt. C. F. A. Clough, Edmonton Garrison chaplain; the Rev. R. McElroy Thompson; Ed. McGarvey, past governor western district Kiwanis International, and W. G. Strachan, lieutenant-governor of Kiwanis International for Alberta.

TELLS OF LANDINGS

Gen. Griesbach explained how the Allied forces gained a foothold on the beaches of Normandy and outlined the various defence works which the Germans probably had constructed to meet the attack. He also pointed out that the Germans had fortified the whole coast line from Narvik in the north, south to the Spanish border. These defences, he declared, were no doubt in great depth especially in the areas most suitable for an invasion threat.

"Hitler's vaunted 'Atlantic Wall' was not a wall in reality like the Great Wall of China, but a system of fortified zones and positions, each erected to give covering fire for the

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

In some sections of the United States it is understood a person thrice convicted of traffic offences loses his license to drive for life. Do you believe that such imposition should be applied here?

THE ANSWERS

A. A. HARRIS, salesman. Depriving a motorist of the right to drive, for life, seems to me to be as easy as interdicting a perpetual drunkard. The motorist will continue to drive, as the interdict will continue to drink, on the sly. I fail to see how the cancellation of a driver's license for life could be made to "stick."

* * *

MRS. L. FOSTER, housewife: The word "can't" is a challenge to any man. The person who is told not to do a thing is the very one who is more than ever determined to do that particular thing. I believe that anyone who is convicted three times for such offences as dangerous driving, disregarding war-time speed restrictions, and the like, should be made to feel more the enormity of his acts. In such cases heavy fines or long terms of imprisonment should be meted out. And the license should be cancelled for a year, at least.

V. OWENS, electrician: Permanent cancellation of licenses to three-time offenders might serve as good object lessons. I feel the courts, at times, are not stern enough with some offenders. Confiscation of the auto concerned would have a double effect of those flagrant traffic violators, and help to make other drivers sit up and take notice.

Fast Mail Service Overseas Letter

Fast mail delivery is not a dream for the future; it is an actuality, according to M. Crandell of 9840 92 avenue.

He and Mrs. Crandell received a letter on June 10, from their son Roy, serving with the army overseas, that was written on June 7.

"Roy and his buddies are in high spirits over the invasion," said Mr. Crandell. He wrote in his letter, "Dad, the invasion has started. We don't know how long it will take to finish it but we do know we will be coming out on top—see!"

Roy was born at Mirror. He received his public school education at Spruce Avenue school here and high school in Vancouver and Prince Rupert. He joined the navy in September, 1941, just after his eighteenth birthday. He served on the Atlantic patrol during 1942 and later joined his ship. He arrived overseas in January of this year.

Mr. Crandell, his father, is a locomotive fireman on the Canadian National Railways.

Will Examine Findings of Conciliators

Findings of a conciliation board appointed to inquire into a dispute between the City of Edmonton and members of the International Association of Fire Fighters, Edmonton Local 209, will be examined by city council's finance committee.

This action was taken Monday night following the recommendation of the city commissioners that although "the outstanding differences seem small to have to refer to a board of arbitration your commissioners cannot recommend acceptance of settlements made with other unions."

City Commissioner R. J. Gibb said that undoubtedly the Police Association members would be dissatisfied if larger increases were given to members of the fire department, while Ald. R. Winslow Hamilton was of the opinion that city council must keep faith with the other unions.

ASK NEW CLASSIFICATION

Executive members of the firemen's union Monday night submitted an offer to city council in an endeavor to settle the dispute. This called for payment of $138.50 to first year firemen; $170 to senior firemen to be the starting rate, and $190 for personnel with the rank of captain. The city's offer for the same ranks was $138.50 for the first year firemen; $165 for senior firemen, and $185 for captains. The previous pay rates for these classifications was, first year firemen, $128.50; senior firemen, $153.50 and captains $173.50.

It was pointed out by spokesmen for the union that the average rate for western cities was $170.90, and for the four prairie cities of comparable size the average rate was $168.72.

Disease Reveals Increase in City

The following is a statement of the cases reported:

Three cadets tied for first place in the competition with scores of 97 and will shoot off for the handsome medal given to the top scorer. They are Cadets Dlin and Batter of Victoria high school and Cadet B. Stiles of Bassano.

LEADING TEAMS

Ten leading teams in the competition were: Victoria high school (No. 1 team) 95.6; Leduc high school (No. 1 team) 92.8; Bassona (No. 1 team) 89.4; Coronation 87.6; Lethbridge Collegiate (No. 1 team) 84.6; Victoria high school (No. 2 team) 84; Westglen high school (No. 1 team) 81.6; Leduc high school (No. 2 team) 81.4; St. Mary's separate school, Calgary, 80.4.

In the "C" competition, open to cadet corps in Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Red Deer, Medicine Hat and Drumheller, the Westglen high school team placed second to Lethbridge Collegiate. High scorer in the competition was Cadet Bruce Angus of the Westglen corps, who posted a possible of 50.

Victoria high school cadets are attached to the 2nd (R) Battalion The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and are under command of Lt. W. R. Stewart.

Civic Employees Assist Squadron

City of Edmonton employees have contributed $100 to swell the fund for comforts for The City of Edmonton Squadron to $3,300, it was announced from committee headquarters Tuesday.

President Gordon Owen of the Lions Club stated that every citizen in Edmonton and district should get behind this cause. All funds raised will be used to buy added comforts for men of the city's squadron who are so gallantly defending the skies over the beaches of Normandy where Allied armies are fighting their crucial battle.

Contributions may be taken or mailed to any bank in the City of Edmonton, the city treasurer, Civic Block, or Mike's news stand.

This campaign has been registered with the Federal government under the War Charities Act, and any contributions may be deducted from income tax returns.

Release Name of Accident Victim

Name of the U.S.A.A.F. ferry pilot, killed in a mid-air collision near Grande Prairie Saturday, has been released. He was 2-Lt. Peter Emigh, 23 years old, of 2428 Sherman Avenue, North Bend, Oregon.

He was born in San Francisco and was unmarried. Since February he has been attached to Gore Field, east base.

The accident occurred when a plane in a group led by Lt. Emigh, pulled up sharply and struck the leading aircraft, causing it to crash.

The other plane was damaged but landed safely at the Grande Prairie airbase for repairs.

Feasibility of Setting Up Company To Be Explored By Committee of Council

Feasibility of the City of Edmonton setting up a company to participate in the Dominion government's proposed housing scheme will be explored by a special committee of the city council.

On a motion by Ald. H. D. Ainlay council Monday night decided to set up a committee comprised of Aldermen Sidney Parsons, H. D. Ainlay and R. Winslow Hamilton to inquire into the feasibility of the city participating in the Dominion plan.

Speaking to his motion Ald. Ainlay said that although a considerable amount of private home building was being done in the city the extreme housing condition for rented property was not being materially affected and would continue for some time.

WON'T EXCLUDE OTHERS

He said that the formation of a company to participate in the housing plan proposed by the Dominion government would not prevent other companies in the city participating.

He pointed out that the city's investment in the scheme would be limited probably to the cost of the lot on which the building would be erected. The cost of lots, he added, was usually 10 per cent of the cost of the home, and under the Dominion plan 90 per cent of the cost would be guaranteed by the government.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Uncontrolled Emotions Break Up Marriages

Middle-Aged Couples Want Revival of Youth's Experiences, Pity Themselves and Take Themselves Too Seriously

The reason that so many marriages turn into endurance tests, instead of being the state of bliss they should be, is because middle-aged husband and wives think too much about their emotions. Up to the time they get in the perilous forties their lives have followed the usual pattern. Boy meets girl. They fall in love. They get married Build a home. Have children. And settle down to unit themselves and babies that they have no time to think about their feelings.

They take love for granted and congeniality in their stride, and if the husband no longer sees his wife as his dream girl, he reflects she is a darn good cook and easy to live with; and if the wife no longer mistakes her husband for a Fairy Prince, she realizes that better or worse he is a good provider than one who quotes poetry. So they jog along comfortably and happily together, without even bothering about their blood pressure.

Then a curious thing happens to innumerable married couples. They moved up from Struggling Row to Easy Street. The children have grown up and are on their own. And for the first time in twenty years the husband and wife begin to analyze their feelings towards each other, and wonder if they have been as happy as they thought they were or whether they missed something, and to speculate about whether they really got their soul mates or not.

MIDDLE-AGE FOLK

They literally sit with their fingers on their pulses counting their heartbeats, and they say normal, they conclude that they have ceased to love each other. At middle age they expect the humdrum of domestic chills and thrills of adolescence, and when they no longer palpitate at the sound of a footstep they have millions of times, they begin to pity themselves as the victims of a dead passion.

And what adds to the tragedy of the situation is that these love-lorn oldsters, who have suddenly discovered that they have ceased to care for their lawful mates, so often turn philanderers. They have gone into a blind panic over hearing the final call to the dining-car and are determined to have a last bite at romance at any cost. So women who have been models of virtue and pillars of the church all their lives have undertake-rose affairs that end in scandals, and men divorce their faithful old wives and marry gold-diggers' young enough to be their grand-daughters.

Nothing is more pathetic than this craving of middle age to revive the emotions of its youth, because it cannot be done. The heart grows old even as our faces do, but it can still beat with just as true and steady a rhythm. And if married people would just accept this as one of the inevitable facts of life, and trust their affection, instead of trying to pep it up with new thrills, they would save themselves a lot of grief.

WHAT! NO HIGHSCHOOL BASKETBALL!

Reader noticing in this column the suggestion that football should be excluded from highschool curricula, wonders why I say nothing about highschool basketball. The reader goes on to describe the case of his son, now 18, who had rheumatic fever three years ago. The boy was taller and heavier than most boys in highschool, and his father thinks his trouble began with a knee injury sustained in a basketball game, when the boy slipped skinned the knee, was treated by some coach or other extra-curricular individual (of course not by a physician), and suffered an extended siege from infection.

The boy's father contends that basketball is quite as strenuous as football, in highschool or college, and thinks I should agitate for exclusion of basketball from highschool athletics.

This youth's rheumatic fever is an unfortunate mischance, like scarlet fever, pneumonia or measles. There is no reason to believe either his basketball playing or the injury to his knee or the maltreatment the injury received, had anything to do with it. Rheumatic fever (acute infectious arthritis or, as it was formerly called, "inflammatory rheumatism") is purely a matter of infection, respiratory infection, by a strain of Streptococcus, and the infection rarely if ever occurs through a wound of the skin, though such occurrence is conceivable.

I contend that highschool football is a grave risk for any growing boy—and 99 per cent of highschool boys are still growing, developing. Parents who permit sons of highschool age to play organized football subject their sons to a strain, particularly a heart strain, which may, and frequently does handicap the victims for life. Football is a grown man's game, all very well for university students, all wrong for boys who have not yet grown up.

Highschool football, from what I have observed, encourages everything that good parents do not want to happen to their sons and daughters. Only effective way to clean up the evil is by an organized agitation and formal demand by a group large enough to compel the school authorities to sit up and listen.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON—I stopped in yesterday at the U.S. information centre to see an exhibition which is part of the WAC recruiting program. They have models and photographs of all the different activities in which the WAC's take part, and I am sure there would be something there to interest every girl. I have received a number of letters lately urging that the age limit for entering the WAC be lowered. This age limit, of course, is fixed by congress, but possibly congress should make some investigation to see whether a change would be advisable, since so many people seem interested in it.

Yesterday afternoon I went out to Walter Reed hospital to attend the last meeting of the discussion groups which were organized by Dr. Bradley Dewey and a group of women for the patients. They have been running in the Red Cross recreation room, but this is now being done over and, though we had a delightful meeting yesterday out on the grounds, the women feel that this would be a rather uncertain regular meeting place since even a shower would make an outdoor gathering impossible. It was beautiful yesterday afternoon. The boys all sat around in their wheel chairs, or stretched out on the grass. It probably did them a great deal of good from a health standpoint, and I hoped they were getting some of the information they wanted.

Three of the officers—fliers, who were just out there, made a most accurate and beautiful model of a British Harker Hurricane airplane, and presented it to me some time ago. Am sending it up to the library at Hyde Park, but since during the war only a small number of people would see it there, I am going to lend it to the school near Hyde Park. I am sure every young boy will be interested in seeing this type of plane, which has been so carefully reproduced.

I have just received a letter from Miss Alma Kitchell who is the director of two women's programs for the Blind. You may know she was the "Woman's Exchange" and "Meet Your Neighbor." Miss Kitchell tells me that she has been doing a great deal of work on clothing conservation, and that Mrs. Ruth Wyeth Spears, who is one of the best known fashion advisers and is called by some, "America's foremost home sewing authority," has been helping her as a contribution to the war effort without any compensation or recognition. Mrs. Picken has published 88 books and countless newspaper and magazine articles, and I am sure that she is helping many women with her advice. I mention both of these women here, because, in addition to their regular

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mothers who are ingenious discover all kinds of ways to get babies to do the things they know is best for them. For instance, insinuating spoonfuls of sieved vegetables between mouthfuls of milk from the breast was one method recently advocated. Dr. D. V. has a still more novel one.

The problem of feeding the small baby vegetables can be a simple ceremony instead of a very tedious one. I would like mothers who have difficulty to try this.

"Doctors and other mothers all disapprove when I told them my Richard was drinking his vegetables, fruits and cereals from a bottle. They believed I would have a hard time to get him to take them from a spoon. However Richard swallowed his first mouthful like an old-timer and since then, first spoonful he has never had any of them from a bottle again.

"I prepared his solid food with enough water so that it ran easily through an enlarged hole in the bottle nipple. For one month he was fed in that manner. After he had developed a taste for the food he knew it was good to eat, even from a spoon.

"The first spoon I used was a coffee spoon. It was more the shape of the bottle and at first he tried to suck on it. I have seen mothers try to feed tiny babies with large-sized spoons, and the babies resented the spoon more than the food.

"When a baby is small it is natural for him to suck his food. As a baby he also has a taste for sweets. For that reason I felt that his first vegetables should be the naturally sweeter ones such as peas, squash, carrots, etc.

"The reason so many children dislike spinach and turnips, for instance, is because of their bitter taste. I found that by adding a small amount of honey to the spinach like Richard ate it well. When he is older and his taste changes I shall omit the sweetening.

"Richard now eats more vegetables than the average child of six months. He learned to like them when he was younger and he got used to larger helpings. I measured in ounces when other mothers measured in tablespoons.

All of this sounds like good sense and good reasoning. Unless feeding by bottle were continued overlong there could be no possible objection to it.

Our leaflets, "Formulas for Infants," and "Feeding from Two to Nine Months," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The open pair event of the Mid-West Conference tournament at Indianapolis attracted a record-breaking crowd. Participants from eight different states met and decided to form a War Orphans' Scholarships committee to assist in the work of raising funds for scholarships for the orphans of the war.

Duplicate—None vul.

South	West	North	East
2♦	Pass	3 N.T.	Pass
7♦	Pass	Pass	Pass
Opening—♥3			13

The open pair championship was won by Mrs. Reba Buck and Tom Mahaffey of Indianapolis. Today's hand, taken from that event, proves that the Indianapolis players are not afraid to bid, and they get there fast. North's declaration of three no triump over the opening two-diamond bid shows a trick and a half without a card in the suit and should over three no trump with the South holding?

You can see that all of the cards in the North hand are worthless except the ten of spades. Declarer has no possible entry to dummy. The only losing card in his own hand is the five of spades. But East's jack drops on the second spade round, which establishes dummy's ten for the much-needed thirteenth trick.

The runners-up in the open air championship were J. Van Brooks and Arthur Levy of Detroit.

CAMOUFLAGE IS NOT A NEW IDEA IN WAR

Camouflage is a very old method of warfare, and has probably been used by every army in history. Even Shakespeare tells of the armies of Macbeth, and how they mounted boughs of Birnam wood on their helmets to conceal them from trees. Native warriors in Africa today carry branches of trees to hide them while they steal upon their foes. But nature was the first to develop camouflage extensively. Insects have markings on their wings and bodies which make them practically invisible against twigs, leaves and flowers where they thrive best.

Pilot Weds At Chapel

The chapel of No. 2 A.O.S. was the setting on Saturday evening for the marriage of Miss Doreen Maryyoungest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil E. Marriott of Edmonton, and Staff Pilot Almer C. Johnson of No. 2 A.O.S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, of Sheridale, B.C. Flt.-Lt. J. G. Ketchen officiated.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a powder blue satmeer wool suit trimmed with lynx. Her hat was a small white sweetheart shape model and her accessories were in white. A shoulder corsage of white gladioli and sweetheart roses, completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Sherman Found, cousin of the bride, attended as matron-of-honor wearing a white jersey frock with mauve accessories. Her corsage was of cream roses and violets.

William Johnson, brother of the groom, was best man.

Mrs. T. J. Fitzgerald played the wedding marches.

Mrs. Marriott, mother of the bride, chose a two piece ensemble in Queen's blue, with navy accessories, and corsage of white roses and white sweetpeas. Mrs. Johnson the bridegroom's mother wore navy blue with crisp white trim and white accessories. Her corsage was of red roses.

RECEPTION

After the ceremony a reception to 40 guests was held in the Royal George hotel.

The bride's table was set in front of white lilies and ferns in a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a silver airplane. Pink Shasta daisies and pansies completed the table decorations.

Jack Faires proposed the toast to the bride.

Congratulations were also extended to Mr. Johnson, father of the bridegroom on the occasion of his birthday, which he celebrated on his son's wedding day.

The couple left on a wedding trip to the Pacific coast. The bride travelled in her wedding ensemble, topped by a camel hair wool coat.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. A. Doherty, grandmother of the bride, J. N. Doherty, uncle of the bride, Mountain Park; Mr. and Mrs. Efner Johnson, of Dawson Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilkie of Edith; Mrs. Vera Russell, Ponoka; and Bill Johnson of Sheridale, B.C.

Griesbach Sees German Defeat In Two Months

other," he said in outlining the plan for the defence works which the Germans had built.

The main objective of the Allied invasion troops at the present time was to capture the French ports of Cherbourg and La Havre, into which thousands of tons of men and supplies could be landed. "In order that the invasion beachheads could be extended and consolidated over all the continent gained, ports are a vital necessity. To try to put men and supplies ashore in small landing craft is like trying to dig a ditch with a spoon," he said.

Gen. Griesbach predicted that Gen. Rommel would abandon all his strategic reserves until he was reasonably sure that the Allies would not attempt a main thrust at some other point.

"I venture to say that we will strike at some other point, which will be our main attack, but I haven't any idea where the attack will be delivered. It may be delivered in Norway in connection with the present Russian drive into Finland, it may be across the Channel to Dunkirk or it may be launched against the south coast of France."

He declared that the object of the present drive into Normandy was in all likelihood an attempt to draw in the masses of men and material the Nazis have in reserve and destroy them. "The fall of central Paris. "Should Rommel be forced to commit these reserves to battle in the West, it will be the object of the Allies to weaken its major punch at some other point," he said.

"I do not like making predictions as I realize the danger of making prophecies, but I will venture the opinion that within two months Germany will collapse and hostilities will be within our grasp," the General said in conclusion.

The speaker was introduced by S. H. McCuaig, K.C., and the thanks of the club was tendered Gen. Griesbach by Mr. MacDonald.

As a special feature of the program a color party composed of representatives of the Navy, Army and Air Force marched into the dining room and halted in front of the head table while the gathering sang "O Canada." Following this the colors were deposited and the party marched off to the roll of the drums. The party was under CSM. R. Williamson, D.C.M. and (R) Armored Divisional Troops Company, R.C.A.S.C. and consisted of Leading Seaman D. W. Gillard, R.C.N.V.R., Sgt. A. Hall, Calgary Highlanders and Flt. Sgt. G. A. Sellers, R.C.A.F. The drummer was Stoker G. J. Josey, R.C.N.V.R. Capt. T. W. Cogland, M.C. arranged details of the color party.

Jack Williams rendered two vocal selections and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Betty Simms. H. W. J. Maddison led in the singing of two special hymns by observance of the occasion and also two patriotic selections. Ralph Couper was at the piano. A special prayer for the Allied forces of liberation was said by the Rev. R. McElroy Thompson.

The program was arranged by Kiwanian D. E. Mould.

In 1800 only one woman out of 2,000 wore silk stockings.

Tomorrow's Homes are Dream Houses, Designed for Comfort

For the house of tomorrow there are dreams of plastic rugs as thick as Persians; upholstery and draperies that can be hosed clean; stainless, mar-less and indestructible furniture, smudge-proof wallpaper; unbreakable table and cooking ware; knives with edges which will never grow dull; and magic appliances that will banish the word drudgery from the Canadian vocabulary.

Many of these dreams are in the embryo of blueprint. Others have emerged from the chrysalis of experimentation-war babies with a post-war career ahead of them.

But even the most dreamy-eyed visionary warns that post war miracles will not be ready for the furniture van on V-Day. Maybe not for many years thereafter.

The reason is that it took this country many months to tool up for wartime industry. Reconversion cannot be expected to beat a record which was considerably accelerated by the urgency of war.

IMPROVED APPLIANCES

What can be expected after D-Day, as soon as the signal is given to start peacetime production, are 1941 and 1942 model mechanical refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, kitchen stoves, radios, washing machines and all the household things on which production was slowed down or stopped during the war and for which there will be a pent-up demand. Because tremendous strides in wartime technological research have been made, from which better methods of production have been developed and more desirable materials have been discovered, replacement furniture and appliances of the 1942 vintage will undoubtedly be improved and are expected to cost less money.

Hopes for transforming the interior of the post war home in plastics, which have contributed so dramatically to the winning of the war, Wartime experimentation proved that flooring for naval vessels, aircraft and homes can be made of tough, non-abrasive plastics that look like wood, glow like hand-polished mahogany, and best of all resist foot-prints, scuffing and stains.

PLASTIC PLUMBING

There is also proof that walls can be made of plastic and that transparent coatings on wall paper can keep it smear proof; that rugs with a pile in which one can sink ankle-deep can be made of synthetic fibers; that non-freeze pipes, plumbing and bathroom fixtures can be made of plastics and because they absorb room temperature will be warm and comfortable.

Upholstery and draperies that can be hosed clean; decorative lamp bases and shades; fireplace tiles, keyed to the decor of a room; and furniture molded in one piece that can't be scuffed, chipped or stained—all promised for the house of tomorrow—will owe their exceptional attributes to plastic in one form or another.

GLASS KITCHENS

There will be new and dramatic use of glass and ceramics. Non-porous and non-absorbent vitriolite glass makes a kitchen sink which only needs a swipe or two with a damp cloth to clean. A sink and dishwasher of glass slides in and out of a wall, and puts on a performance with electric lights and foot pedals.

There is a glass-hooded cooking unit, scheduled for modern kitchens, containing among other things a rotary barbecue and recessed glass utensils in which to cook and serve a meal.

Wartime necessity of keeping defence plants cutting tools keen-edged without re-sharpening, a chrome-alloying process will one day do as much for kitchen cutlery, scissors, pocket knives and lawnmowers.

But even with all these miracles the old things that one likes will remain. Authorities promise that no matter how streamlined and functional the interior of homes become, there will always be a place for traditional furniture and for a period decor that matches.

Cabaret Dance Attracts 200

Small tables, individually set to accommodate 200 persons, were arranged throughout the new American Red Cross recreation centre, on Monday evening, for the first in a series of cabaret dances. Personnel of the recreation centre was in charge of arrangements.

Each table was set with a hurricane lamp and a candle which threw a soft glow and shadows across the room. Stars with tinsel hangings glittered in realistic style from the ceiling and novelty pictures, and plaques drew attention to the walls.

Servicemen, masquerading in white chef gowns and hats, and wearing horn rimmed glasses, and goatees, screamed orders in foreign accents. This was an act to give the guests a laugh, and get them as muddled up as possible.

Jack Jackitsky's orchestra played for dancing, and at 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. floor shows were presented by soldier artists and local talent.

The floor show was arranged through the co-operation of the Allied Arts Council, and Mrs. Elizabeth Sterling Haynes was chairman of the dramatic section.

Taking part were Clem Carr, Seaman Douglas McWhinnie R.C.N.V.R., Sgt. Robert Knudpen, U.S.A.A.F., and a girls' trio.

It is hoped that a similar cabaret dance will be held at the Recreation Centre every month. Reservations should be made well in advance according to personnel of the centre.

Helen MacKie Pledges Vows

A wedding of wide interest took place in the social room of First Presbyterian church Monday at 7:30 p.m. when Miss Helen Stirling MacKie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacKie, the Highlands, became the bride of Sgt. Hector Currie, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. Elizabeth Currie and the late Mr. Currie of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Pink and white peonies decorated the room and the Rev. J. MacBeath Miller performed the ceremony.

Sgt. Charles Pawlette, R.C.A.F., played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was smartly frocked in a white sharkskin suit, a white sheer ruffled blouse, a hat of white and red roses trimmed with white veiling, and a corsage of red roses and gardenias.

The bride's sister, Mrs. D. M. Davies was matron-of-honor and she wore an iris colored silk jersey frock, white hat and accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and mauve sweetpeas.

Sgt. George Royds, R.C.A.F., was best man.

After the ceremony, a reception for 100 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake and decorated with peonies and pyramidium and lighted by tall ivory tapers. A. M. Matheson proposed the toast to the bride.

Mrs. MacKie chose for her daughter's wedding a grey blue crepe dress, white hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses and white sweetpeas.

Mrs. Jean Dobbie sang two solos at the reception, "Through the Years" and "Garden of My Heart". She was accompanied at the piano by Henry Atack.

Women Prove Their Worth

PORT ARTHUR, June 13—(CP)—Women have won a position in the war that cannot be characterized as less worthy and less patriotic than that assumed by men, Mrs. Edgar D. Hardy of Ottawa, president of the National Council of Women, said here today.

In an address prepared for delivery to the council's 31st annual meeting, Mrs. Hardy said women have proven they are entitled to their rightful place in councils of government and even in discussions at the peace tables.

FACING CRISIS

Women of the world today faced their greatest crisis as a power for good. "Everything depends now upon our vision, our realization of values and our determination of the goal towards which we are pressing."

Mrs. Hardy said that the increase in juvenile delinquency had been attributed by authorities to war hysteria, but contributory causes were lack of proper home life, lack of fundamental principles of religion, and lack of education.

She said that the primary reason why the woman's voice, not only in Canada but in other countries, had not had greater weight was because "we have not always stood together.

Homemakers' GUIDE

How To Dress Up Salad Dressings

A GOOD ready-to-use salad dressing is, in itself, guaranteed to add zest to a meal. But there are scores of simple little ways to make them even more zestful. For instance:

FOR RICH COLOR, combine shredded raw beet and the juice of ½ lemon with 1 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise—adds interest to any raw or cooked vegetable salad.

FOR HOT VEGETABLES, try this homemade hollandaise: mix 1 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise, 2 tsps. prepared mustard, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, and a dash of salt—piquant on cauliflower, for example.

FOR MEAT OR FISH, combine 2 tbsps. finely chopped chives (green tops of onions will do), with 1 cup salad dressing — toothsome on vegetable salads, too.

GARAGES
Some lines of BUSINESS are good today and have an excellent immediate future, and into this category come GARAGES. Well-conducted GARAGES are very busy and making money, and the FUTURE, with sales of new cars staring us in the face as soon as the War is over, GARAGES will be one of the outstanding BUSINESSES that one can buy.
Mechanics can be had, (most of our listings are equipped with good mechanics), and a man of good commercial ability can fill the bill.
The last six months we have been working very hard to get our listings in this particular line well up . . . Today we have many special offerings at prices requiring from about $4,000 up to $20,000.
Many good opportunities are lost by not "taking time by the forelock."

Britain Crammed

Great Masses of Men, Machines Cross Strait

By JAMES McGLINCY
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

ON COAST OF ENGLAND, June 13.—The invasion is only a week old and the Germans have not seen anything yet, it can be reported after a tour of rear lines where great masses of men and war machines are being assembled to go to France.

All the way from the streets of London to invasion ports and docks there is constant movement. One artery leads to roads near ports vehicles bearing certain unit designations are seen. The next day its the same ports there are the same long lines of tanks, trucks and jeeps but they are different vehicles with different unit designations.

The heavy stuff is moving up now —tanks, tank recovery vehicles, anti-aircraft guns, and force ground equipment and air service command installations. Added to this are the steady processions of British trucks and lorries and the "paddlefoot" infantry.

All of these troops and equipment choke the roads as they move convoys wind in serpentine columns over the hills and through the towns.

SHIPS OF ALL SIZES

The Germans have softened with ships of all sizes from little motor boats up to great battleships.

On the man-made beaches of stone and concrete where the landing craft put in, the loading goes on ceaselessly.

Overhead during the day new, fat baby barrage balloons glint in the sun. Airplanes criss-cross incessantly to and from the front. Close at the front the rear lines there is no noise of battle, only the rumble and grind of machines and the gloomy silence of shouts.

Almost all the vehicles going up the ramps to landing craft are chalked with the inevitable wise-cracking slogan: "London bound—via Berlin", "Rommel, you too can be the life of the party" and others. The boys, too, scribble the machines with the names of girls they are leaving behind.

From the size of this army that is massing across there must be thousands left behind.

Pinch-Up Gal

At recent annual party of New York Police Sergeants' Benevolent Association, three-stripe coppers cross comely model Mickey Randall, above, as "Girl They Would Most Like to Pinch."

McCoy Health Service

Varicose veins occur more often after childbirth and more often in women than men. The veins of the lower leg are most often affected, becoming enlarged, knotty, or painful, and of a purplish-blue in color, so that it is easy to see them wending their course just beneath the skin. In the beginning there is a sense of weight without pain, due to the weight of the blood which the valves in the veins are not holding back properly.

People who stand at their work are more likely to suffer from the disease. It is interesting that a man is about the only animal who suffers from varicose veins, probably because, since he stands upright, there is a great pressure of blood upon the veins of the lower leg.

Varicose veins, unless carefully treated, tend to become worse as the vein becomes widened and its valves more defective, allowing the blood to throw extra weight upon the next valve below. Ulcers may also form and if the disease exists for a long time.

The usual causes of varicose veins are prolapsed abdominal organs, pressure of feces, or tight garments such as garters or belts. Many patients suffering from this disorder are advised to have the veins surgically removed or rendered fibrous by injection treatment, or the patient may be advised to wear a rubber stocking. I believe that the most satisfactory cure depends upon a general health-building regimen to improve the blood and the veins will have a proper nourishment for developing strong walls. It is also necessary that the abdominal organs which may be pressing on the veins, local treatment should also be given in one wishes to reduce the enlarged veins to a normal size. Certain kinds of electrical apparatus which can only be used by a physician are extremely valuable for this. You can benefit yourself, however, by taking elastic exercises for improving the circulation. A good exercise is taken while lying on the back on a planing board with the feet elevated, as in this position the abdominal organs are pulled away from the lower veins and this relieves the congestion of the lower extremities. Gentle massage while the legs are elevated is also beneficial. The strokes should be made from the extremities toward the heart. After the veins have been treated in this manner, you can benefit yourself by the application of a lump of ice to the enlarged veins. This should be done several times daily. The ice may be held against the vein with a towel so that your hand will not become too cold, but the smooth part of the ice should be placed directly against the swollen vein while the leg is in the air so the blood has an opportunity to drain out of the vein.

When varicose ulcers have developed, there is at first only a discharge of serum, but in advanced cases pus cells are also exuded. The best treatment for varicose ulcers can be administered by a doctor or nurse in actinic light. One or two applications of this will cause a healing of the ulcer.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1131 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Before the Magistrate

Jack Gawdun, Edmonton, who charged Nick Hlibka with assault, failed to turn up in court Tuesday morning. The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge and the case was dismissed by Magistrate A. H. Millar, K.C. Gawdun will get a bill for costs of court.

Found guilty of dangerous driving, Jack Tymchuk was fined $15 or 21 days. The accused, it was stated, had been driving on 97 street when he struck a man who fell and broke his arm. As he sought to get rid of it, his car collided with a parked car.

* * *

William Smith and Michael Mc-Carthy were present. Various William's third appearance so far this year for the same offence, and he was assessed $40 or two months with labor. McCarthy, who was told he had been in the habit of visiting this court at least once a year for many years, stated that he had just got out of hospital. His penalty was $25 or 35 days.

Award Presented To Credit Unions

Marking outstanding progress in the credit union movement in Alberta in 1945, a plaque given by the Credit Union National Association of the United States was presented to J. Robitaille, vice-president of the Alberta Credit Union League, at a meeting here Monday night.

The plaque was presented to J. Robertson, Edmonton, representative to the national association's convention, in Madison, Wisconsin, in May. It commemorates achievements in the province in which 55 new credit unions in 1943, surpassing the record of any other credit union state in North America, not only in new members gained, but also in proportion to population figures.

At Monday night's meeting of the Alberta league, held in the Legislative Buildings, Mr. Robertson handed the plaque over to Mr. Robitaille, who was acting on behalf of A. M. Munro, league president.

The award will hang in the office of F. J. Fitzpatrick, provincial credit union supervisor, for the month, when it will be sent to Calgary and later to the next provincial convention.

2 Condemned Men Await Execution

The last day in the lives of George and Sam Baptiste Desjarlais, condemned to hang for murder, dawned Tuesday morning. But the sun was invisible, hidden by heavy clouds and driving rain. They spent the day quietly and with little show of what was in their minds. Tonight, at midnight, police, the chief provincial coroner, and other officials will gather at Fort Saskatchewan jail. Sometime early Wednesday morning the two doomed men will be led up the 13 steps to the gallows.

Last minute application for commutation of these sentences was not accepted, according to word received here.

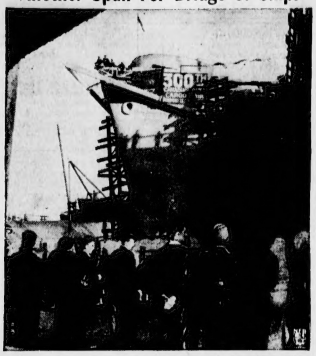
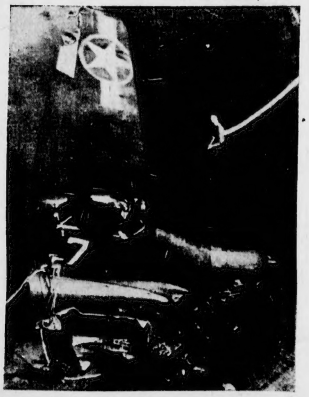
Another Span For Bridge of Ships



As the men and women who helped shape her bulking sides watched with a casual air born of numerous similar occasions in the past, The SS Westend Park, 300th freighter built in Canada since the start of the war, was launched in Vancouver, hub of Canada's Wartime Cargo Shipbuilding industry. Of the 300 ships launched to date, less than 25 were 4,700-ton freighters, the remainder being of the 10,000-ton variety. Of the eight yards turning out the large cargo vessels, six are located on the Pacific coast, four of them in Vancouver alone. Mrs. H. R. McMillan, wife of the original head of Wartime Merchant Shipping, officiated at the Burrard Yards launching.

He Was Able to Walk Away



What was left of this Hellcat plane was landed right side up by Ensign R. Black, of Brigham, Utah, in one of the most remarkable carrier landings of the war. Shot up over the Caroline islands, Black came in with hydraulic system gone, laps useless, a large hole in the right wing and his ailerons smashed when he slipped sideways and sheered off his tail and one wing on a gun turret. Black emerged with a few scratches.

Returned Airmen Join TCA

As the beginning of a policy of rehabilitation of returned airmen, Trans-Canada Air Lines is engaging for its flight crews a number of men who have distinguished themselves on operational duties overseas and who are now back in Canada. They have been made available through an arrangement with the R.C.A.F., and are undergoing specialized air line training before being assigned to service. The first group was photographed in Trans-Canada's Link Trainer room at Winnipeg. Left to right: FO. R. S. White, Orillia, Ont., who took part in 40 operations, including 14 raids over Germany, served in Egypt and Libya; and was at Malta for three months; FO. H. H. Bolton, Stettler, Alta., who was attached to the Coastal Command in Great Britain and flew as far as Iceland; Flt.-Lt. E. L. Howey, D.F.C., Exeter, Ont., who was a member of the Demon Squadron and took part in 1,000-bomber raids on Germany; FO. J. C. Morden, Fleming, Sask., who has 34 operations to his credit in Wellington bombers and was in Egypt and Libya; FO. R. C. Fogal, Edmonton, Alta., whose duties were over Scotland, Gibraltar and North Africa.

"The Maple Leaf" Goes to Press on the Italian Front

—Canadian Army Overseas Photos.

In the two months since its birth, "The Maple Leaf", a daily newspaper published by and for the Canadian Army in the Mediterranean theatre has become an institution, ranking only behind rations and mail in popularity with Canadian soldiers fighting there. Staffed by former Canadian newspapermen now in the army, printed in Naples on German-built presses in the publishing plant of a big Italian daily, it has a circulation of over 16,000—and it is not for sale. The troops get it free. By air, land and sea, "The Maple Leaf" goes to every Canadian unit in that war theatre, to Britain, and to Canada. These pictures illustrate how this Canadian Army newspaper is turned out. At left is Capt. J. B. McFarlane, former Windsor, Ont. and Toronto newspaperman and now managing editor of "The Maple Leaf" discussing the print run with "Piccolo," a midget size Italian printer. Centre shows the linotype room with Ted Stelling of Hamilton, Ont., setting type, and at right are pictured offices of "The Maple Leaf"—other army newspapers are published here also—as a despatch rider brings in a new batch of copy for the paper.

—Canadian Army Overseas Photos.

Here is the composing room of "The Maple Leaf" as the Canadian Army newspaper "goes to bed." Charlie Smith, (left) former composing room employee of a Toronto newspaper, prepares to lock up the tabloid size forms on which the newspaper is prepared, ready for the next press run. Staff artist of "The Maple Leaf" is Sgt. W. G. "Bing" Coughlin, of Ottawa, shown in centre at work on an illustration for the paper. On the wall behind him are sketches he has done, including drawings of Gens. Vokes and Burns. At right two members of a Canadian Highland unit get their copy of the paper and read it while waiting for meal parade. Started as a weekly, "The Maple Leaf" is now an up-to-the-minute daily, distributed to and read by troops of every Canadian unit in the Mediterranean theatre.

Led R.C.A.F. Invasion Wing

When the combined Allied forces invaded Nazi held France, a Canadian Fighter Wing of the Air Force was led by Wing Commander George Keefer of Charlottetown, P.E.I., pictured above with his pet, "Rommel." After spending an hour over the beaches the first Canadian fliers returned to their base with jubilant accounts of early success.

Ann Corio Is Mexican Bride

Ann Corio, former burlesque strip teaser, has revealed that she and Bob Williams, vaudeville performer, were married April 8 in Mexico. This is a recent photo taken at a Hollywood night club.

Bosses Squadron

No arm chair commander is Wing Commander C. G. W. "Bill" Chapman, of Fredericton, N.B., youthful O.C. of the first R.C.A.F. Squadron to be sent to Iceland. He was snapped here as he cleaned up a few desk matters between visits to this point and that in "Camp Maple Leaf", Station Headquarters and other places. Until recently he was a flying commander, had his own crew and aircraft. Today, base administration claims too much of his time. The parka is for protection against stinging Iceland sleet squalls.

R.C.A.F. "Wag" Meets Kin in Iceland

Sergeant Mike Gislason, of Winnipeg, a wireless air gunner with the R.C.A.F. Squadron in Iceland, has relatives there. His parents came from the Arctic island in their teens and married in Canada. At the little town of Hafnarjarthur, a few miles from "Camp Maple Leaf", Mike is seen with his aunt Mathilde, rear left, cousin Gudmuntar, rear right, and (front row) cousins Rajna, Valdis and Vildis. His uncle Garthur's home is seen in background at the left.

Maternity Ward

The early bird may get the worm, but the smart bird gets hospital care when it comes nesting time. The five youngsters of the Ottawa Robin family shown above are receiving expert attention from the hands of Major C. D. L. Cromar, R.C.A.M.C., at Rideau Military hospital, Ottawa. Pa and Ma Robin built their nest on one of the porches of the hospital, and the egg-setting efforts were enthusiastically cheered on by the soldier patients of the institution. So far, five of the six eggs have hatched, with little "Juniors" popping sprightly into the realm of sunlight and the odor of antiseptic. Major Cromar, who originally hails from Aberdeen, Scotland, and who practiced at Vermilion, Alta., prior to the war, is floor-pacing worriedly waiting for the sixth shell to crack.

Canadian Tribal Destroyer Sioux in Invasion Fleet

One of Canadian ships reported in action with the invasion fleet is the tribal destroyer H.M.C.S. Sioux fighting alongside her sister the Algonquin. These destroyers carry 4.7-inch guns and can do 36 knots.

MONTHLY LIVESTOCK REPORT

Total receipts for the month of May, 1944, consisted of 8,538 cattle, 1,322 calves, 14,483 hogs and 380 sheep. As compared to the same period in 1943 there is an increase of 1,756 cattle, 572 calves, 5,693 hogs and 98 sheep.

The cattle market throughout the month was largely on sellers. There were no draggy periods and good killers found ready sale at all times. Towards the close prices gradually got firmer, particularly on the better classes. Choice steers advanced from the forepart at $11¾ to a high of $12½ at the close. All other butchers were correspondingly higher. The quality of the offerings indicated by the gradings showed 20.5 per cent., were of good to choice quality. Practical tops at the close on choice steers were $12½, heifers $11½, good light cows $9, heavy cows $8½ and bulls $8.

Stockers and feeders were in general demand, particularly after the heavy moisture for pastures was assured. Chooice breedy kinds traded around $10 to $10½, with plain and common kinds from $6½ to $9½.

The calf market opened stronger and remained on a fairly level basis throughout. At the close good to choice handy weights sold from $12 to $13, with really choice $13½. Heavy and common kinds were from $11½ down.

The hog market was unchanged, with grade A quoted at $16.35 and B1 $15.95. All other grades unchanged. Receipts were heavy and taxed packing plant facilities to the limit. Farmers were continually advised to regulate marketings and to deliver hogs only on the weighty order. Total hogs slaughtered during the month was 173,666. Feeder hogs were in good demand at $12-$14 per cwt., according to weight and quality. The gradings for the month indicated the quality were as follows: A's 26 per cent., B1 45.0 per cent, B2 2.5 per cent, B3 7.7 per cent, C 8.9 per cent., D 0.3 per cent, lights 0.3 per cent, heavies 3.4 per cent, extra heavies 2.2 per cent., stags 0.1 per cent., ridglings .5 per cent., sows 2.5 per cent.

Sheep and Lambs: Butcher lamb prices held fairly steady throughout, with the quality mostly on the fair to medium order. Good to choice handy weights traded from $11-11½ off track, with off cars $11¾ and odd lots $12. Yearlings were mostly from $6 down, and good light ewes $5 down.

Winnipeg Rye Prices Higher

WINNIPEG, June 13—(CP)—Rye futures closed 2¼-2¾ higher today on the Winnipeg grain exchange with July at $1.08⅜, October 1.08, and December 1.07⅝. Light offerings aided in the day's advances.

Other grain dealings included the sale of 125,000 bushels of high grade wheat to the United Kingdom.

Traders reported that due to the Minnesota state grain weighers' strike Canadian railways had placed an embargo on all grains, feeds, screenings and soya beans consigned to railways in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Chicago Wheat Futures Gain

CHICAGO, June 13—(AP)—Wheat prices moved up as much as two cents at times from low points and rye was even stronger today on reports that conditions in sections of the southwest were conducive to rust.

The advance in wheat prices apparently was brought about by short covering which disclosed a scarcity of offerings. Short covering and stop loss buying was evident in the rye trade.

Wheat closed 1 to 2 cents higher, oats were ¾-1¼ higher, rye 1¾ to 2½ cents higher and barley was up 1¼ to 1¾c.

City Will Become Great Air Centre

VANCOUVER, July 13—(CP)—Because of her geographical position Edmonton will inevitably become one of the great air travel centres of the world, J. Boyd McBride, president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, told a businessmen's meeting here yesterday.

Mr. McBride is one of 27 Edmonton businessmen visiting various Vancouver industries this week and discussing mutual problems with British Columbia business organizations.

Fields and airports in Edmonton are being developed on a scale to match post-war freight and passenger traffic along the neutral route to Asia, Mr. McBride said.

Tuesday the party will visit Britannia Mining and Smelting Company plant at nearby Britannia.

Bitter Fighting

Canucks Took and Held Vital Railway Crossing

By RALPH ALLEN
Toronto Globe and Mail and Southam Newspapers War Correspondent
(Distributed by The Canadian Press)

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 13.—(CP)—In his first press conference in France Sunday, Gen. Montgomery paid high tribute to the Canadian 3rd Division in general and especially high tribute to one of its brigades.

This is the story of one of that brigade's battalions, but it is not the whole story. Some of it is lost forever in a suddenly silenced pillbox, where a Canadian corporal, shot through the stomach and both legs coming off his assault boat, was found dead with a knee across one dead German and his stiffening fingers around the throat of another.

Some of it lies further inland around a railway crossing which the battalion was told to take and hold, and which it took and held in the face of the most powerful counter-attack any Canadian unit has met since the division obtained its first foothold in France.

STILL THERE TODAY

The right hand battalion was still there today. Technically it was in rest. On the left in a high copse not a mile away machine guns were tapping like steel woodpeckers at work in a steel forest.

"I didn't know men could be that good," said the colonel. "It was very hard on the beaches, very hard. We pushed on. Our job was to get into position around a bridge on the railway from Caen to Bayeux. They're still fighting on that line. The battalion had already had to fight as hard as any unit in the entire British army to get ashore, but early in the morning of D-plus-day it was at its objective.

"They shelled us all night. By noon every company was pinned down by heavy machine-gun, mortar and artillery fire. Then they brought up their armor. Tiger and Panther tanks, mostly. I don't know how many, perhaps 15, perhaps 25. The infantry infiltrated into the woods and copses around our trenches. We didn't have tanks with us, of course.

TEN-HOUR ATTACK

"The attack lasted 10 hours, not counting the preliminary bombardment. Two or our company positions were finally overrun by the weight of metal and numbers. But one company was able to hold battalion headquarters, and another company consolidated and hung onto their toehold. We were still holding our positions when another battalion from our brigade relieved us that night."

Still there. Lieut. Richard Moglove of Winnipeg, because he pretended he was dead when a German infantryman got the drop on him and pumped two wild rounds at point-blank range. L.-Cpl. Bill Rutland of Clearwater, Man., and Rfmn. Tom Troughton, an Almonte (Ont.) man, and Bill Natiuk of Lockport, Man., because our artillery opened up when they were marching back as prisoners of war and they hit one ditch while their captors hit another.

CSM. Charlie Belton of Roblin, Man., because he jumped in a stalled carrier and ran the gauntlet of the tanks. Lieut. Andy Bieber and Sgt. Bill Walsh of Winnipeg, mainly, they guess, because they're lucky.

LAST MEN IN

Still there. Rfmn. Max Hillier of Niagara Falls, Ont., Harold Anderson of Morden, Man., and Stan Lernowich of Brandon, Man., were among the last in. Tanks dug them out of their trenches, but they survived the fire of the infantry to find shelter in the garage of a farm completely surrounded by the enemy.

They crowded together in the front seat of a car which was partly hidden behind a tall farm cart. To make room in the front seat they had to leave their weapons in inaccessible positions.

Hillier dozed off. When he woke up he saw the faces of his companions were bathed in sweat. He started to move to ease his muscles. He felt Anderson's body stiffen in warning. Then Hillier saw a German sniper looking out of the garage's one window.

"FROZEN" FOR HOURS

The three men sat frozen for hours. The sniper went, but other Germans continued to pass outside and past the window. Traffic thinned. The deep helmets of the wehrmacht went by now in threes only, then in twos. There was a break. One more German. Another break.

The next helmet was the shallow Canadian model. The men from the west were coming back. This time they had some tanks of their own, and more guns behind them. And, despite the murderous odds of mammoth Tiger tanks against small ones, the left hinge of their position had never been lost. The bridge it was their job to deny the enemy had not been opened to him.

The troops of the brigade Gen. Montgomery mentioned Sunday are still there, around the bridge.

Many at Funeral Of L. Goldsworthy

A large number of friends of the late L. D. Goldsworthy gathered Monday at the Howard & McBride funeral chapel to attend a funeral service conducted by the Rev. Murdoch McKinnon, B.A., D.D.

Pallbearers were Stan Livingston, Tom Trace, Bill McLean, J. A. Morgan, Pete McCormack and H. R. Blackwood.

Miss Cathryn Zender sang a solo, "No Night There."

Burial took place in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

WINNIPEG, June 13.—Hugh McRae, veteran Canadian Pacific telegraph solicitor who has travelled the west for many years with kings and political big-wigs, completed 50 years with the company last February, and has now entered retirement. The occasion was marked here Thursday when his colleagues of the C.P.R. telegraphs presented him with a purse of money, and their best wishes.

Known by the soubriquet, "The Newspaperman's Friend", it was Hugh McRae who "rode herd" on the groups of newspapermen travelling through the west with Prime Minister MacKenzie King, with Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett (now Lord Bennett) in his days as premier and as Opposition leader, and, in 1939, with Their Majesties the King and Queen. It was the genial McRae who knew every little station along the line where there was a good operator to handle press copy at any hour of the day or night, and who arranged special wires, messengers and typewriters for the correspondents at points where the political leaders were scheduled to make important speeches.

"Mac", as both telegraphers and correspondents knew him, is a real Winnipegger, but also a westerner in the broader sense. His folks brought him over from Inverness, Scotland, when he was two years old. They came up from Emerson by Red River cart, settled for a while in Moose Jaw, but returned to Winnipeg in 1894 when "Mac" joined the C.P.R. telegraphs as messenger. "At that time," he recalls, "horse-cars were operating on Main street and the city had 25,000 people." He rose to clerk, to night manager and finally to solicitor. Since 1936 he held the title of traffic solicitor and his duties included travelling through the west with important personages who carried a newspaper retinue in need of constant wire facilities. "Mac's" unfailing good nature and his cheerfulness in rousing from bed at 4 a.m. to put off some "rush press" endeared him alike to humble local reporters and high-priced correspondents from Ottawa, London and Washington from whom he still gets letters.

"Mac" plans to continue to live in Winnipeg, his home for more than half a century.

Swiss Halt Mail Service Overseas

NEW YORK, June 13. — (CP) — The Swiss government has suspended mail service to France, Spain, Portugal, Great Britain, Eire and "all overseas countries" because of the interruption of rail traffic across the frontier, the Swiss domestic radio announced yesterday. Previous neutral press reports had mentioned activity by anti-Nazi French partisans against German communications on the Franco-Swiss border.
